Annexation 'pros and cons' get a hearing

AN EDITORIAL

The annexation issue has become so important that the editor of Paddock Publications feels that as a local newspaper it should take a definite stand and make a public statement "why." Here it is:

There has been a lot said on both sides, much of which is inconsequential.

East Davis street has been recognized as a factroy area and little voice has been raised against the zoning of that area as light industrial.

The Herald is convinced that the Roth Manufacturing Co., manufacturing an almost exclusive product, asking to locate in the same area, has a financial background that insures its permancy as a business institution and it should be permitted to come to Arlington Heights.

Reason No. 1:

The Kirchhoffs have decided that they are not going to continue farming their property north of Central road. The villages of Arlington Heights and Mt. Prospect cannot successfully keep a possible development company from securing a classification of residential for the present farm land and selling lots on which homes will be constructed under the county code.

Due to its location, there will never be another Scarsdale on that farm. Those who are able to buy $15,000 to $17,000 homes will prefer property with city conveniences. A lot of eight to ten thousand dollar homes would rise up at Arlington's back door step. Such homes can not be built within the corporate limits of Arlington Heights.

This town has been fortunate in escaping this cheap housing blemish.

The Herald thinks that an attractively constructed industrial building is to be preferred to houses which would become of the tumble-down-type within a few years.

Reason No. 2:

Only three per cent of the homes erected in 1951 in Arlington Heights are in the "junior executive" class. We can understand why the owners of such homes prefer to have their community become recognized as a community of better class homes—a town of home owners of the upper class in wage brackets of $10,000 upwards. We do not question their motive or blame them for the attitude they are taking.

On the other hand it was the every-day common laboring class of population who first established Arlington Heights, brought about and paid for permanent improvements that created a desire in the minds of the junior executives to choose Arlington as a good place to live.

The common villagers have welcomed the more wealthy brethern and have been proud of the show places they created in such sections as Scarsdale and Scarsdale Estates. They do not begrudge them their financial success or the fact that they are able to commute to Chicago and bring home salary checks that make possible those show places.

BUT residents of Arlington Heights who have never and will never reach the $10,000 to $20,000 bracket also have a right to live in the town of their forefathers.

Many of them are being employed in local and neighboring industrial plants. They will welcome the added possibility of home employment from a factory of the character of Roth Manufacturing Co.

Reason No. 3:

Our village board has strengthened existing building code and has passed ordinances that will keep out the erection of undesirable homes. It has increased the lot width area and has established by ordinance restrictions that safeguard surrounding property values.

No longer will it be possible to plot subdivisions with such small lots that houses will be in touching distance of each other as exists in parts of Arlington Ridge and Arlington Park.

Owners of three areas are preparing to place on the market subdivisions which will add several hundred new homes the coming year and further over crowd our schools.

If the objectors to the use of land for industrial purposes can find a way to erect an iron curtain around the present home building areas, there would be some reason to their stand that admittance of an industrial area for light industry will mean an unwanted residential boom. The boom is on the way—industrial plant or no industrial plant.

Reason No. 4:

Admitting that the home building can not be stopped, how can we control the class of people who will buy those homes?

If one of the provisions of a sales contract for a home shall be a "white collar worker," there are several hundred white collar workers with the Roth Manufacturing Co. Many of them have given indication that they are in a pay bracket that will permit them to purchase a class of homes in the almost junior executive class—some of them can meet the financial requirements of the executive class.

Anybody who has visited the Roth Manufacturing Co. knows that the men who get their pay checks from that company by hand labor are of a class that Arlington Heights can welcome, They will become good citizens. They are not in the cheap labor class.

There are many residents in Arlington Heights who work at machines, who are paying for their homes because they have steady jobs with reputable firms.

Of course many of the employees of Roth Manufacturing Co. will want to buy a home near the plant in which they are employed. Those three budding subdivisions would probably have better homes erected on them because of their sale possibility to men of the Roth Manufacturing Co. class.

Reason No. 5:

Arlington Heights cannot stop its growth. There are not enough junior executives home buyers waiting to sign on the dotted line to encourage those three subdividers to build only junior executive homes. They will build homes for the men of modest means, of which there are many to be found in the Roth Manufacturing plant.

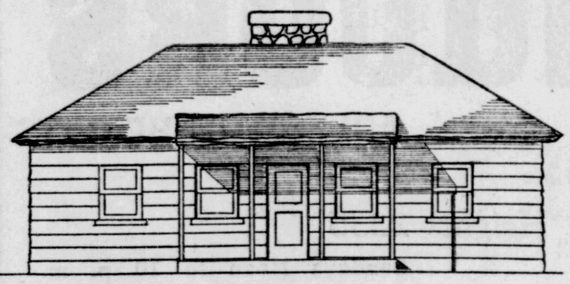

Arlington Heights has become known as the City of Good Neighbors. Our citizens, regardless of the size of their pocketbooks, are good neighbors with which to live. Because we do not all agree on the annexation issue does not mean that we are not good friends, regardless of who wins.

With all due respect to our village board, they have dilly dallied a bit about definite action on the annexation matter. They have courteously bowed to the wishes of the objectors for time in which all the pros and cons can be presented to the public.

Those pros and cons were adequately stated last Wednesday night. It is time for action.

This paper has never told members of the village board how they should vote, but it hopes that threats of reprisals at the election next year or the presentation of a mammoth petition will not cause any board member to vote other than for what he thinks will be for the best interest of this community of 9,000 inhabitants. The future welfare of the community-at-large should supersede the influence of mass hysteria.

The 'ayes'—

Heading the sub-committee in favor of annexation and industry was N. M. Lattof, who was assisted by E. E. Carman, George F. Schneberger, Charles P. Stewart, Carl M. Teutsch and Harry Bierma. This group was assisted by Mrs. George Tuttle, who introduced Dr. James C. Downs Jr., president of the Real Estate Research Corp. of Chicago, and an authority on real estate economics, who voiced his opinion on what effect industry would have on real estate values in Arlington Hts.

As an opening the group pointed out that the property in question was completed surrounded by effective barriers, including the proposed tri-state highway on the west, the North Western railroad on the north and Central rd. on the south. A few pictures of the site were projected on a screen, some of which showed existing industries in the background.

THE GROUP pointed out with the aid of slides who the neighbors of this proposed company would be, which included Prospect Mill and Lumber company, Milburn Brothers and Illinois Range company, immediately east of it, (separated by a small group of houses) along Central rd.

To the north is the railroad, and on the west is Arlington Concrete Products. Northwest of the tracks is Arlington Seating company and a few small industries on Beverley lane and Hickory ave.

PICTURES OF low cost housing in that vicinity were also shown, and the question asked, "Do you prefer to have more of this uncontrolled housing, to the erection of a modern plant such as Roth proposed to build on this site?"

Some persons tend to associte the term factory with plants of older type construction, such as the Creamery Package Manufacturing company, Benjamin Electric, and Lord and Burnham. To prove there is no similarity between today's industrial plants and those of yesteryear, the group showed pictures of modern industrial plans, including Baxter Laboratories, A. B. Dick Co., H. M. Harper plant, Teletype plant, all of which are located within a few miles of Arlington Heights' back door.

They stressed their point by showing the effect these plants had on the residential areas in the immediate vicinities. They showed pictures of homes which compared in beauty and value with any home in Arlington Heights, and stressed that these homes had been built since these industries located in those particular sections.

THE AUDIENCE was told that it's time people changed their thinking about American industry because modern science has outlawed industrial development which disregards or destroys the beauty and wholesomeness of a community. More and more people will find that industry wants to be a desirable part of a community, more attractive, and stimulating property values rather than depreciating them.

Another slide pointed out the following quotation from a planning conference proceeding in Los Angeles, "The city plan which gives inadequate attention to the welfare of industry is a plan for a super-structure without foundation or reinforcement."

MODERATE PRICED homes predominate in Arlington. Over one-fourth of the new homes erected in 1951 were in the $10,000 or less class. Twenty-nine per cent were in the $12,500 and $17,500 classification. Only four per cent of the new homes cost $20,000 or more.

The complete picture of home construction during 1951 was given in this chart:

Estimated Cost	Units	%
10,000 & Under	88	26.1
10,000 to 12,500	64	19
12,501 to 15,000	98	29.1
15,001 to 17,500	54	16
17,501 to 20,000	20	5.9
20,001 to 22,500	4	1.2
22,501 to 25,000	5	1.5
25,000 & Over	4	1.2

Another quotation from a Valparaiso Planning Roundup in Valparaiso, Ind., read, "Tax income from residential property is insufficient to supply for adequate service for a community. A balance is needed."

A brief history of industrial development in Arlington Hts. was then given. The group pointed out how the existing industries have served their purposes, and served them well, but most of these plants are old and now heavily depreciated.

THEY SHOWED how the village has every type of home, from the moderately priced in the area near the Catholic church to the elaborate mansions of Scarsdale Estates. This was to prove that the village's residential areas contained homes of all price ranges, which would easily be within the means of any Roth employee who might decide to move here.

A plant, such as the one proposed by Roth, would be an asset to the village, compared to the low cost housing which might just as well be developed in these unincorporated areas. A few examples of such developments pointed out by the group was Prospect Meadows and the airport trailer camp.

DR. DOWNS cited in his talk that a plant such as the one proposed by Roth would be a definite asset to the community, this type of plant would not lower property values, and in the long run, would lower the tax rate of the community.

In conclusion the affirmative side stated that to bar the annexation, thus preventing the erection of the modern Roth plant, would be a luxury the village of Arlington Heights could ill-afford.

Salesmanship and fire works mingle at town meeting

Approximately 800 citizens from Arlington Heights and surrounding communities attended the mass meeting at the high school March 5, which was held to present the pros and cons as to whether or not industry should be permitted to build in the village.

The question arose when owners of a 70-acre tract of land lying east of the village limits sought to have the property annexed to Arlington Heights, and then have it rezoned to permit the Roth Manufacturing company to locate there.

When it became apparent to the Arlington Heights village board that there was a good deal of mixed feeling regarding the development of industry in this area, Mayor Albert W. Goedke appointed a committee to gather facts pertinent to the question. These facts were then to be aired publicly at the aforementioned mass meeting.

The committee appointed by the mayor consisted of: Hugo J. Thal, chairman; Robert R. Blackburn, E. E. Carman, Matthew L. Cockrell, N. M. Lattof, Harvey H. Orndorff, William E. Sauer, George F. Schneberger, Charles P. Stewart and Carl M. Teutsch.

At the first meeting of this citizens committee the group agreed to divide itself into two sub-committees, one to gather facts in favor of the question, and the other to gather facts against the question.

John Mulder served as moderator during the discussion and question and answer period following.

PRIOR TO presentation of facts by the negative and affirmative committees, W. C. Keeran, vice-president of Roth Manufacturing company, presented the audience with facts regarding the company's operations.

In brief the company was founded in 1905. It manufactures generators for railroad car heating systems, it is clean, free from offensive odors and noises, and employs only highly skilled labor. Since its founding the company has slowly, but most assuredly, increased in size, has weathered two wars and a depression, and is operating on a firm foundation.

Its present plant site on the southwest side of Chicago is being used to its full extent, and in order to continue its development must have more land to house this expansion.

During the question and answer period, following the presentation of "evidence," village engineer Arthur Consoer reported that the village sewer and water system would be adequate to handle a plant of the Roth size.

In answer to an inquiry a statement was made that Mount Prospect and Palatine have similar interests as Arlington Heights and perhaps it would be an excellent idea if the three boards of the towns discuss jointly the industrial development of the entire area.

High school to present concert Sunday

The music department of Arlington Heights township high school will present their first concert in the new gymnasium Sunday, March 16, at 3:30 p. m. A presentation of awards earned by the music students will be made by their directors, Fredrick C. Schmoyer, Miss June Leick, and Martin Dahlberg.

Legion, Lions plan to build cabins, camp site for Scouts

Merle Guild Post American Legion and the Lions club of Arlington Heights have a real treat in store for the Boy Scout troops of the village. They are combining efforts to erect two cabins which may be used by the Scouts for winter overnight camping trips, and by the Girl Scouts and Cubs during the summer for day camps.

At present, however, they are seeking a suitable site for the cabins. They need a plot of ground between one and two acres in size ,preferably wooded, and far enough off any main highway so that it would not necessitate the hiring of a caretaker to watch the property.

ANYONE knowing of any such property for sale, or anyone caring to donate or lease such a piece of property for this purpose should contact either Robert Bishop, Legion commander, Arlington Heights 3113, or C. S. Becker, Lions representative, Arlington Heights 2254.

The proposed cabins are to be approximately 20x35 feet in the main section, and will have natural fireplaces. Each would be big enough to house two patrols of scouts ,eight to ten in a patrol, plus their adult leaders. The site will include a central camping ground for summer outings, and will also contain a section for tent sites.

Final plans and specifications for the cabins will be drawn as soon as property is acquired. The Legion and Lions have high hopes of beginning actual construction late this coming summer.

It's Gardenia

That certain "air" about the newspaper today is not the "Spirit of Spring" as captured by Paddock Publications but, rather, is the result of a perfumed ink used by one of the advertisers.

The scent (Gardenia, if you can't guess) has been added to the ink by Roy Collignon of Collignon-Nash, Inc. of Des Plaines as an aid in introducing the new Nash, "The car that has an 'air' about it."

The 'nays'—

Heading the sub-committee against annexation and industry was Harvey H. Orndorff, who was assisted by Robert R. Blackburn, W. C. McCosh and William E. Sauer. Three other men who aided this group in the presentation of its material were George Hoban, Kenneth Wagner and James Webster.

THIS GROUP pointed out that in spite of the belief of many that the development of industry in a community would lower taxes considerably, that this was not true. If Roth Manufacturing were allowed to locate here, taxpayers would actually only realize a small saving and that saving would drop off, if the company required any other services from the community, such as police and fire protection.

They stressed that the proposed property to be annexed does not lie within the boundaries of elementary school district 25 of Arlington Heights, and therefore that school, to which more than one-third of each local tax dollar goes, would gain nothing from its admission.

It was pointed out that the proposed plant intended using only half of the 70 acre tract for its purposes. What was going to be done with the rest of the property? Was Roth going to sell it to another company for industrial purposes?

THE GROUP felt that such a plant would encourage low cost or multiple dwellings, trailer camps or even public housing developments in and around the village.

They read various figures showing tax rates in communities which allowed industry to come in and in those which were functioning without the aid of industry. According to these figures industry had little or no effect in lowering tax rates.

The committee felt that Dr. James C. Downs Jr., who spoke in behalf of the affirmative side, had contradicted himself when he came out in favor of allowing industry to come into Arlington Heights. For proof they cited three surveys prepared by Downs, an authority on real estate economics.

A MAP SHOWING the small amount of industry compared to the vast amount of residences in Arlington Heights and surrounding towns was presented. The villages looked small compared to the vast amount of undeveloped area shown on the map. The group wondered if the village permitted one industry to come in, would not there be danger of other of this vast undeveloped area to suddenly be taken over by industry?

In conclusion, the negative side asked that the village board hold up any action on the annexation until it heard a decision by Stanton and Rockwell, planning engineers recently hired by the village to study future development of the town, and costing the taxpayers $5,400.

PTA book fair Friday, March 14

Friday, March 14, the eleventh annual book fair sponsored by the Arlington Heights PTA will take place at the South school gym. This event will give the Arlington Heights children and their parents an opportunity to view a large number of popular children's books.

Because of radio and TV programs, many children are missing the wonderful experience of owning and reading worthwhile books. By coming to the book fair with their children, parents can help them in their selection of books, and thereby encourage them to read more at home.

THIS YEAR, especially, the book fair deserves the support of every family, as the commission from the sales will go to the schools to purchase new books for the libraries. With the building of a new school, additional books will be most welcome. This is an opportunity to expand the school's libraries and add to one's own. Stock up on books for birthday presents as a book makes a worthwhile and lasting gift.

Through the courtesy of "Home and School Service," and the Misses Ida Swail and Olive Flaherty, these books will be sold at standard prices.

Lower grade children will have an opportunity to view the books to decide which ones they would like to have. Junior high children may purchase their own books. Miss Flaherty will give a book review at the North school Friday morning.

The book fair is open to the public. Plan to visit it at either 3 to 5 in the afternoon or 7 to 9 in the evening. Refreshments will be served in the evening with Mrs. Dresmal as chairman.

Financial needs of schools send total rates upward

Elk Grove township real estate tax rates for 1951 were released this week by the county clerk's office. Many general taxing bodies have lower rates than 1950. School districts have higher rates, except in the case of two consolidated districts.

Overall increase for Arlington Heights taxpayers will be $.174. Mount Prospect's increase amounts to only $.036. Figures are based on the portion of each village lying in Elk Grove township. Wheeling township figures were not yet available, but any difference in the rates between the two townships would be slight. Central rd. is the dividing line between the townships.

Total rates for the two villages, including school districts and all the supported taxing bodies, are:

	1950	1951
Arlington Heights School District 25	$3.406	$3.58
Mount Prospect School District 57	$3.50	$3.536

This rate does not apply to that portion on the north side of Mount Prospect which is in school district 26.

Tax rates for the county, forest preserve, Elk Grove township, road and bridge, and suburban TB sanitarium apply to all property owners in the township. Mount Prospect rate also includes the sanitary district, village, school district 57 and high school district 214.

Arlington Heights rate also includes the village, park district, school district 25, and high school district 214.

School district 25 Arlington Heights had the greatest increase of any taxing body, from $1.266 to $1.392, or a difference of $.126. District 57 Mount Prospect was a close second, jumping $.104 from $1.244 to $1.348. The high school rate advanced 2c, from $.820 to $.842.

The village of Mount Prospect again cut its rate, from $.560 to $.544, a decrease of $.016. The village of Arlington Heights increased 7c, from $.554 to $.626. The park district decreased a cent and a half, from $.196 to $.182.

Since this is a quadrennial assessment year, property owners cannot figure their tax bills in advance. The 1951 assessed valuation of Elk Grove township is $11,673,512, compared with $10,613,197 for 1950.

Tax rate figures are based on $100 assessed valuation. Mount Prospect receives $5.44 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation in the village. Arlington Heights receives $6.26.

Each dollar paid in taxes is divided among the various taxing bodies as follows:

Mount Prospect

County	$ .10
Forest Preserve	.01
Elk Grove township	.005
Road and bridge	.015
Sub. TB	.02
Sanitary District	.075
Mount Prospect village	.155
School District 57	.38
High school district 214	.24
	$1.00

Arlington Heights

County	$ .10
Forest Preserve	.01
Elk Grove township	.005
Road and bridge	.015
Sub. TB	.02
Arlington Hts. village	.175
Park district	.05
School District 25	.39
High school district 214	.235
	$1.00

State	111
Present total	1865

Harvey Orndorff announced this week, "Anyone who desires to sign this petition as their expression against further industrial expansion in Arlington Heights may do so by contacting anyone of the following: Harvey Orndorff, William Sauer, William McCosh, Robert Blackburn."

Dist. 56 to vote on new 2-room school March 29

Patrons of School District 56, known as Forest View, located on S. State rd., will go to the polls March 29 to vote on a $55,000 bond issue.

The money would be used to erect a two room school building, south of the present school house. The board has funds available for the purchase of an additional acre of land.

AN OFFICIAL notice of the election appears in this issue. It establishes an interest rate of 2 3/4 per cent for the first ten bonds which will have maturities between 1955 and 1960. An interest rate of three per cent will apply on the subsequent bonds.

Present school enrollment is 37, but many pupils are attending other schools because of the present half sessions.

WITH THE completion of the proposed new building, the old structure will be available for physical education and as a community center. A new heating plant will care for both buildings. It is not the intention to increase the number of teachers. With two rooms in service, full day sessions can be resumed.

District 56 is in the same position as nearly every other school district in northwest Cook county. Practically all of them have new buildings on the way.

NEW NON-FICTION

The Peculiar War,
by E. J. Kahn, Jr.

The impressions of a reporter in Korea. "In its total effect this small book achieves body, flavor, and zip, as a beer maker might put it. Without seeking to inform the reader, or seeming to strive for unity in his work as a whole, Kahn's thoughts, experiences, and impressions somehow comprise a pretty fair roundup of the war's problems and undertones. He writes easily, but his use of language is precise, and he never gets off-key when he is speaking of soldiers, their habits, outlook, group character, and conversation. The pre-eminent value in the book, however, is that it has accented so many things of major importance which other writing men in the theatre have failed to convey to our people."

CIRCLING THE TOWN
BY PHYLLIS KNIGHT

More books for local children—purchased at regular prices by their parents—will enable the public school library to have more books to offer for loan. This unique combination is made possible by the Book Fair, sponsored for the eleventh year by the PTA and being held Friday afternoon and evening at the South school gym.

All popular children's books will be on display, and orders will be taken during the hours the fair is in progress—from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. Though customer pays no more than the regular price for books he buys, the PTA receives a commission from "Home and School Service," sponsors of the sale. Thus a share of the profits stays right with the local organization and is spent on improving facilities of the school libraries.

The fair itself is free to every one interested in good books for children, with visitors welcome to browse about as long as they wish. School children will be taken to the fair during the day, with lower graders "just looking" and "selecting" and Junior high students permitted to buy books of their choice at that time.

An invitation to you

The Arlington Heights Junior Woman's club has termed their annual spring fashion show "Your Invitation to Spring," and they'll present it to the public Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

To add to the completeness of the program, there will be not only spring gowns, suits and evening clothes from Dore Mode in Evanston but attractive accessories as well. O'Connor and Goldberg will offer the spring fashions in shoes and handbags, Cammile's of Evanston, the latest in new hats and the Charm Center of Mount Prospect will show models with their hair styled in the most popular trends for the coming season.

This fashion show is invariably one of the club's most successful projects, and also the one on which members work the hardest. Tickets, at $1 each, include refreshments, which will be served at the close of the program. Proceeds will go to several of the club's philanthropies for which their various fund-raising projects help provide throughout the year.

Age over youth

It was the men of the faculty—from the Junior high, North and South schools—who came out on top in Monday's teacher-school team competition in the South school gym.

Serving as a climax to the year's successful basketball season, the competition brought cheers for both sides from the assembled students. Officiating for the game was done also by both groups, a student and a faculty member sharing the duties.

Though the game was hard fought with both sides ready to "do or die" the whole was in a spirit of good fun.

Congratulations to . . .

Bob Virgil, another of Clayton Mott's speech students at Arlington high who, last week, won the district American Legion oratorical contest. This Friday he competes in the division finals at Lakeview high school, Chicago. Bob is sponsored by Merle Guild Post 208.

To complete the evening Mrs. Henry Tholen, Arlington Girl Scout counsellor, will give a short resume of girl scouting. Refreshments will be served after the program.

Romance of Jewelry

The opal is formed from gelatinous silica, deposited in cracks and fissures in various types of rocks by water solutions. In hardening, the silica gel loses some of its water, thus forming opal.

During this process of dehydration and hardening, cracks often form. These cracks are some times later filled with additional thin films of opal, having a different refractive index from the main ground mass.

Interference of light waves in passing through these thin films of opal results in the familiar play of color, or "fire," which makes opal a valuable gem.

Opal is a very common mineral, found in almost innumerable localities all over the world. Only rarely, however, has nature filled the cracks formed during the dehydration with that thin opal film necessary for sufficient beauty to be classed as a gem.

In its common varieties opal may be colorless, white, gray, brown and various other tints.

THE OPAL is classified as either precious opal or common opal. The following are the important varieties of precious opal:

White opals are those having a light or white body color with fine play of color.

Black opals have a black, dark blue, dark green, or dark gray color with fine play of color.

Harlequin opals are those which show play of color in regular, close-set angular patches. Harlequin opals having very small patches of color are known as pin fire opals.

FLASH FIRE OPALS are those displaying play of color in more or less irregular streaks.

Girasol opals show no play of color, but instead, have a moving billowy blue light.

Fire opals are those which are transparent to translucent with an orange red to red body color. They may or may not show a play of color. Cherry opal is a name given to the cherry-colored variety.

Gold opal is a variety which exhibits an over-all color of golden yellow.

Onyx opal is defined by most authorities to be opal made up of alternate layers of precious and common opal, or of alternate layers of opal and chalcedony.

'Men of Song' close Community Concert series

The final program of the current Community Concert series for this season was presented at the Arlington Heights township high school auditorium by the "Men of Song," a versatile male quartette consisting of John Campbell and Alfred Kunz, tenors, Roger White, baritone, Edmond Karlsrud, bass, together with their accompanist-arranger Charles Touchette.

Not since the days of the famous "Revelers" quartette has the concert stage had such an accomplished group of male singers, who set about winning the hearts of their audience with their stately opening number, "The Heavens are Telling," from Haydn's "Creation." Following this with one of Schubert's more glowing songs entitled, "Restless Love," and Brahm's "Marching Song," sung unaccompanied, the quartette closed their first group with a vigorous song of Strauss entitled "Sing."

The second group brought forth Schumann's "Dedication" and was followed by the well known Chopin Etude Number 3 in E major. It was in this number that the skilled arrangements of Charles Touchette became impressive, for every outstanding musical group in concert work today owes a large part of its success or failure to the calibre and appeal of the arranging that is done for their particular group.

For this reviewer the third group brought to a close the serious part of the program and opened up the popular and entertaining section which only a male quartette can do justice to —the entire group consisted of a brilliant and touching sequence of numbers from "Carousel," hit tunes from the pens of the famous Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Following intermission, John Campbell, top tenor, who had relatives in the audience, sang the evening's operatic aria, "Celeste Aida," by Verdi. The quartette followed with a group of American folk songs, "Drill Ye Tarriers," "Across the Wide Missouri," and one of the popular hits of the evening, "The Blue Tail Fly."

Showing complete versatility, the regular program was brought to a close with a group of spirituals including "Noah" by Schmertz, "I'm a Poor, Wayfaring Stranger," and Jacques Wolfe's "The Glory Road," made famous by John Charles Thomas.

The generous encores included, to the delight of the small fry, the teenagers, and the barber-shoppers, such favorites as "Dry Bones," the "Mustache Song."

The general chairman of the series, Gail Blocki, presented an announcement in regard to the course for next year, saying that the series can rise to even greater heights of artistic achievement by bringing outstanding symphony orchestras, top concert artists and groups to the spacious stage of the new gym if the course can be tripled in membership.

Attendance shows evidence of whole family groups from the elderly to the school folks. The drive for next year's season membership will be limited to one week in May, and further information will be available later.

Rev. Bronstein to address church group

Rev. David Bronstein Jr., assistant superintendent of Peniel community center, 3839 W. Lawrence ave., Chicago, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Women's Association of the First Presbyterian church of Arlington Heights March 19 at 8 p.m. in the sanctuary.

Rev. Bronstein has chosen for his topic, "The Passover Table," and will explain the Jewish passover preparations in detail.

Mr. Bronstein, who is a Christian Jew, is a graduate of McCormick Seminary of Chicago, having been ordained there in the late 1930's. Peniel center is one of the Presbyterian neighborhood houses in the Chicago area and Mr. Bronstein began his work there immediately after his graduation and ordination. His father, Rev. David Bronstein Sr., is superintendent of the center. Mr. Bronstein, who is making his second guest appearance in Arlington Heights, is the author of "The Jewish Passover" and "The Christian Communion."

Mrs. Robert Baron, spiritual life chairman for the association, will present the devotional program for the evening with scriptural passages from I Corinthians 5-7. Mrs. J. A. H. Zimmerman, soprano, will sing a solo. Mrs. Richard Lull will accompany her at the organ.

This evening meeting of the association is designated as the annual "Men's Night," and special guests also include the two evening circles and their husbands as well as friends and guests from other churches. The meeting is also open to the community.

Following the program in the sanctuary, refreshments will be served in the church dining room by members of the board of the association. Mrs. Jack McComb and Mrs. Arthur Martens are in charge of refreshments.

Scouts hold birthday party

Girl Scouts, their leaders and adult workers jammed the field house Tuesday afternoon to celebrate the Girl Scout movement's fortieth year. Group singing started off the festivities and then Mrs. R. Dale Hinchliff, Arlington Heights Council president, gave the greeting.

A choral reading and skit were presented by Mrs. Henry Tholen's troop 7. The cake lighting ceremony, highlight of the party, followed. Representatives from intermediate troops lighted the candles and Brownie representatives blew them out again.

After the party, which featured candle-wrapped tootsie rolls for each scout, the cake was sent to the Lutheran Home for the Aged. The girls of troops 21 and 26 were in charge of wrapping the candles to resemble birthday candles.

Invitations issued to the troop leaders, calling their attention to the party, were sent out by Mrs. Gale Smith, president of the Leaders' association. Mrs. Melvin Born, program chairman of the Arlington Heights council, was in charge of the birthday party arrangements.

'Through Charley's Door' to be subject of review Monday

Mrs. E. J. Harris will review "Through Charley's Door," by Emily Kimbrough March 17 at 8 p. m. when the Third Monday Book Review club meets at the home of Mrs. Charles Heiss, 315 W. Vine st., Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Arthur Ashcroft will be co-hostess.

"Charley's Door" was the fashionable entrance to Marshall Field and Co., and in an entertaining fashion this book reveals the human comedy and baffling inner works of a great department store.

Evening guild to meet

The next meeting of the Evening guild of St. John Episcopal church, Mount Prospect, will take place March 19 at the Mount Prospect village hall at 8 p.m. This will be the guild's annual business meeting and officers will be elected for the year 1952-53.

A coffee and social hour will follow the meeting. Refreshments will be served by hostesses Mrs. E. James Beam and Mrs. William B. Winkler. (AM

Gates Tires Are Better Because—

BETA RAY CONTROL PANEL — Here a Gates technician studies the control panel for the new beta ray gauge installed at The Gates Rubber Company plant in Denver, Colo. The control line on his chart gives a record of the uniformity of the rubber-filled cords then being measured. Measuring is done by a radioactive beam which passes through the cords.

IONIZATION CHAMBER — A Gates production foreman studies operation of the new, atomic-age device — a beta ray gauge that includes an ionization chamber (cylinder at left). This cylinder collects and records radiation which comes through the rubber-filled cords from the encased particle of STRONTIUM 90. The most minute deviation in standard weight is recorded.

Radio broadcast heads Parkway Liquors Grand Opening celebration

Arlington Heights welcomes another business this Saturday when Parkway Liquors, Davis and Evergreen, stages its formal Grand Opening.

Owner Harold (Hal) Massmann, two year Arlington resident, and manager Frank (Happy) Korinek are featuring a radio interview broadcast by Cliff Mensing from the store at 1 p.m. This show will be re-broadcast on station WRMN (1410 on your dial) at 4:15.

Other features of the Grand Opening are hundreds of free Hawaiian orchids for the ladies along with many other items for men, women and children.

The two men responsible for Parkway Liquors are both experienced in the liquor business.

Massmann operated a liquor business in Chicago for three years before coming to Arlington Heights and is well known for his active participation in professional sports. He played baseball with the Ft. Wayne, Ind., member of the Three-Eye League and Milwaukee of the American Association. Massmann also played professional basketball.

"Happy" Korinek boasts 18 years' experience in the liquor business, the last five in Barrington.

Planning the Grand Opening for Parkway Liquors has been the work of Kay Nylen Fohrman, writer and radio artist, of Elgin. She will continue as advertising manager of the business.

PTA to have 'quiz' program March 18

The program committee of Arlington Heights PTA have tried to help make "Education Your Business," by giving parents an over-all picture of the school and its program. This picture would not be complete or true if the programs were strictly concerned with the curriculum.

Many parents have questions and are puzzled about the school's "Promotion Policy," "Reporting to Parents," "Discipline," "Grouping and Special Education Program.' In order for all parents to understand this part of the school's operation, a "Quiz" type program has been arranged covering these subjects for the next PTA meeting, to be held March 18, at 8 p. m. at the North school.

Supt. R. E. Clabaugh will be the "Quiz Master" and teachers from the faculty who will be interviewed and their subjects are as follows:

Reports to parents, Miss Gaskins, Mr. Hetke, Miss Lawrence.

Promotion, Miss Sodt, Mr. Flum, Miss Reeb.

Grouping, Mr. Savage, Miss Toohey, Mrs. Henning.

Discipline, Mr. Campbell, Miss Marron, Mrs. Radcliffe.

Special education, Miss Sapp, Mrs. Hamilton, Miss Elliott.

As an added feature, the following teachers will demonstrate aids for teaching mathematics: Mr. Malcolmson, Miss Quinn, Miss Radecki.

Charters will be renewed for Cub pack No. 232 and Boy Scout troop No. 32. The Boy Scouts will present the flag. The third grade mothers are hostesses for the social hour following the meeting, with Mrs. Donald Thompson as chairman.

Red Cross funds aid in time of war, disaster

The annual Red Cross fund drive in Arlington Heights is now under way, and Mrs. R. K. Dillenback, fund chairman, has announced that the village's goal is $4,000.

Citizens are urged to greet the Red Cross volunteer worker who calls at their door, with a contribution, be it small or large, as pennies as well as dollars will help the village reach its goal.

THE CASUALTY lists in Korea are more than statistics to the Red Cross. There has been a 100% increase in the number of Red Cross workers in the Far East alone.

At home the Chicago chapter has been handling an average of 6,400 servicemen cases each month to bridge the gap between men in the service and their families at home. One third of the Red Cross' total expenditures will go for guidance and financial assistance to servicemen and their families.

Under its congressional charter, the Red Cross is actually the semi-official welfare branch of the armed forces and has no option but to continue all forms of help. A major job in the coming year is the vital blood collection program. Due to the use of whole blood and plasma, the wounded recuperated rapidly and fatalities were greatly reduced.

DISASTER relief programs is also a Red Cross major job. Last year national catastrophies took 5,000 lives, destroyed 13,000 buildings and damaged 173,000 more.

The Kansas-Missouri flood last summer was one of the great disasters of all time. Red Cross rushed 600 paid disaster specialists into that situation, registered some 25,000 families and spent some $14,000,000.

Quartets entertain at Eastwood meeting

Sixty-two residents of Eastwood mixed business and pleasure last Tuesday evening at their Community Association meeting in the field house.

During the business meeting, members heard committee reports on the town meeting and membership programs. They also laid preliminary plans for a mosquito abatement project under study for the Eastwood section for this summer. W. C. McCosh is chairman of this project.

Pleasurewise, members of the Eastwood group heard two outstanding Arlington Heights quartets; one dramatic and the other musical.

Musically, the group was entertained by the Four Hoarsemen, a barbershop quartet composed of Stan Myers, Dan Krebsbach, Barnie Erickson and Fred Jasper.

Hostesses for the meeting were Agnes McCoy and Evelyn Miller.

Primitive art to be subject of art study group

Primitive art will be illustrated and discussed by members of the Arlington Heights Woman's club when the art study group of that organization meets at the home of Mrs. C. A. Hendrickson, 303 N. Haddow ave., at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Chester Moore will exhibit samples of primitive painting; Mrs. Walter Edelblute will speak on mountain lore; and Mrs. Richard Mates will give illustrations of Indian arts and crafts.

Mrs. Robert Marsh is chairman of the group.

All Woman's club members and guests are invited to make reservations for the afternoon coffee and program by calling Mrs. Hendrickson, phone 1351.

Show Easter film at March meeting of Catholic club

St. James Catholic Women's Guild of Arlington Heights is inviting all the women of the parish to their meeting March 25 in the basement of the new church at 8:30 p. m.

The entertainment committee has procured the film, "Hill, Number 1," which will be shown after the business meeting. This film deals with the first Easter story told by an army chaplain from a Korean battleground setting and features the Resurrection, famous Biblical scenes and settings, including Pontius Pilate's palace in Jerusalem, Christ's tomb and Golgotha.

Some of the noted stars in the film are Ruth Hussey, Joan Leslie, Gene Lockhardt and Roddy McDowell.

Officers and members of the guild urge all women of the parish to make a special effort to attend this Lenten meeting.

LIFE AMONG THE GIANTS

by VERNE FAUST

PART I

How would you meet life if you were suddenly thrust into a world of giants? If the people around you were 11 feet tall and weighed between three and four hundred pounds? At one time you faced this situation. Have you forgotten?

About the time you were ready to enter kindergarten, the giants—called adults—were twice as tall and weighed four or five times more than you. To make matters worse, those great monsters who hovered over you possessed an omniscience which enabled them to perceive your thoughts and motives.

Today, your role has changed. You have become the giant. Your sons and daughters are the subjects of your rule.

During the first days spent by the child in the kingdom of Goliaths, he knows only the strength of his mother's arms enveloping him, assuring him of warmth and relief from hunger and pain. Soon, however, he finds himself venturing into the outside world, beyond reassuring arms. Here, freedom from discomfort is not always immediate, pleasure is often absent. The "little man" finds that other little men exist—demanding, selfish, greedy little men whose only desire, it seems, is to deprive him of his pleasures: toys, ice cream, and attention.

And in the nearby shadows the omnipotent giants stalk him. He must constantly "give up," advance, retreat, and undergo a barrage of "don'ts" and "stop its." He feels that each needling "don't" and "stop it" weaves an indenturing web around his tiny existence.

Somehow, he must adjust to this world of constant defeats and frustrations. Life, really, is nothing more than constantly, each second, adjusting to something, whether it is hunger or cold or need for respect. Germs invade the body. Immediately antibodies are produced to ward off the invaders. This is one kind of adjustment.

Even insanity is a way of adjusting: The mind simply refuses to accept life as it is and designs an irrational world to fit its needs.

The child may adjust to the threatening world in many ways. In a game of baseball, for example, he is called out at first base. He believes he was safe. He considers himself mistreated. He may adjust by crying (this has often won him his needs); he may sulk on the sidelines (this may result in attention from the others); or he may take his ball and bat and go home (thus escaping the intolerable situation and at the same time punishing his offenders).

If he makes a healthy adjustment, one which will result in a happy boy, he will accept the defeat with the determination to play harder, and thus send his opponents to their defeat in a socially approved manner. He will have accepted the fact that life offers a procession of never ending defeats which should not always be taken personally. He will learn to lose, to acknowledge defeat, to suffer displeasure.

Each September, through school doors pass many of these "crybabies," "temper tantrum toms" and others of less serious nature but who have not yet matured in the good sportsmanship manner. They have not yet learned to adjust to their society in acceptable ways. If the teacher is going to successfully carry out the educative purpose of the school, he must knit a harmoniously democratic society within the room. Harmony, a singularity of purpose, a group oneness with which each child as an individual may securely and proudly identify himself—these are the prerequisites to more profitable academic learning.

How does the teacher develop this type of atmosphere? How does he promote good sportsmanship? The methods are several in number, but all must essentially rest upon the following theorem: that the child must develop individuality and at the same time identify himself with the group. The individual is shown to be more important than the group—and that the individual's security and happiness is dependent upon the group.

Sponsor benefit luncheon and fashion show April 1

"It's Spring Again" is the title the North Suburban Auxiliary of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society has given its benefit luncheon and fashion show to be held April 1 in the Casino club, Chicago.

Saks Fifth Avenue is the exhibitor. The party will be one of the most outstanding of the season and of particular social interest. The title, "It's Spring Again," actually serves to keep secret an unusual fantasy of elaborate beauty.

Mrs. Ralph E. Lilleberg of 322 Derbyshire lane, Arlington Heights 1944-J, is the member in this area to contact for reservations for the party. Reservations, however, are limited and though tickets have been available just two weeks, more than half have been sold.

As an affiliated board, the North Suburban Auxiliary supports and assists the work of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society. This organization is a non-sectarian, licensed, privately supported child welfare agency. Its principal function is to provide foster home care for children whose parents cannot fulfill their parental obligations. Many of the children are from broken homes and are the victims of desertion, neglect or the illness and death of their own parents. In foster homes throughout the state of Illinois, these children are given the opportunities and environment that will enable them to mature into healthy, normal men and women.

Founded in 1883, the society has cared for more than 140,000 dependent youngsters. Each year it served in some way more than 3,500 different boys and girls. The society also arranges for the adoption of many babies each year.

Headquarters of the agency are located at 1122 N. Dearborn st., Chicago.

Favorites for Flavor

By LOIS SEILER

Sure. and come Monday everyone who can claim a drop of Irish blood will be a-wearin' o' the green. And many without that precious drop will don a shamrock as a tribute to their Irish friends.

Special religious services are held St. Patrick's day, but it is also a time of parades, feasts and parties.

This week we have a menu and two special recipes which feature the eatin' of the green for March 17.

Start off a festive St. Patrick's day dinner with emerald-topped soup. Dash any creamed soup generously with minced parsley or chopped chives.

For the entree serve barbecued pork chops and baked Murphys (potatoes) with corn bread, currant jelly and Shamrock salad. Top off the dinner with Shamrock cake and black tea or coffee.

The Shamrock salad is made of parboiled green peppers which are stuffed with cream cheese flavored with grated cheese, chopped pimientos and chopped stuffed olives. The stuffed peppers are chilled, sliced and served on salad greens with mayonnaise.

A double layer silver cake with a lime filling and white boiled icing forms the basic structure for Shamrock cake. A large green shamrock is made on the top of the cake with green tinted butter icing. Instructions for making the shamrock are explained in the recipe.

Shamrock salad

Parboil fourlobed green peppers (seeds removed) five minutes. Chill. Stuff solidly with mashed cream cheese, to which have been added grated cheese, chopped pimientos, chopped stuffed olives, and cream or salad dressing to moisten. Other combinations may be used. Chill, slice and serve on salad greens with mayonnaise.

Shamrock cake

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
¾ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon almond extract
3 egg whites
¼ cup sugar

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream butter thoroughly; add sugar gradually creaming together until light and fluffy.

Add dry ingredients alternately in thirds with milk and flavorings, beating after each addition.

Now beat egg whites until stiff, gradually beat in ¼ cup sugar, continuing to blend until whites stand in peaks. Fold quickly but thoroughly in batter.

Pour into two greased, waxed paper lined, again greased 8-inch layer pans. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 20 to 25 minutes.

Cool layers on rack. Put layers together with cooled lime filling and frost with 7 minute white icing.

Make the design for cake by cutting shamrock out of stiff paper. Set gently on center of frosted cake and mark outline with knife. Remove paper carefully and fill in design with pale green tinted butter icing, using pastry tube.

Lime filling

4 tablespoons flour
¾ cup sugar
Dash of salt
¼ cup lime juice
½ cup water
1 egg, well beaten
2 tablespoons butter
½ teapsoon grated lime rind
Drop green vegetable coloring

Combine flour, sugar and salt in top of double boiler; blend in lime juice, water and egg. Place over rapidly boiling water, and cook 10 minutes, or until thickened, stirring constantly. Add butter, rind and green coloring; cool.

Butter icing for shamrock

2 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons lime juice
1 cup confectioners' sugar
Dash of salt

Cream butter; add part of sugar and salt, blending thoroughly. Add lime juice and remaining sugar until thick consistency. Beat until smooth. Tint a delicate green.

Missouri synod churches to aid in expansion program

Every one of the communicant members of the Lutheran church, Missouri synod, will be visited by a fellow-member March 23, according to plans set up for the $10,000,000 expansion program of the church body.

Missouri synod churches in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Wheeling, Roselle, Bensenville, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Des Plaines will be among the many churches participating.

Even the children of the church will cooperate with a "thinking and doing" program designed especially for them.

The personal solicitation plan, according to John C. Baur, director of the program, is designed to insure "personal participation with a sense of personal responsibility" on the part of every member of the church. "We think everyone will want the opportunity to do his share," says Dr. Baur.

Beta ray comes to tire industry

The long wait for the harnessing of atomic energy has ended, according to Virgil Horath of Arlington Heights, who announces that tires now in his stock and produced by the Gates rubber company, Denver, Colo., contain rubber-filled tire cords that are scientifically weighed and measured by a tiny piece of radioactive material.

The miracle material is a particle of Strontium 90, no bigger than the head of a pin, and a by-product of the atomic furnaces at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

It is being used by Gates to gauge the weight and density of rubberized cords used in Gates tires—to an accuracy of .001 pound per square yard—as the fabric moves by in the production process.

HORATH POINTS out this more accurate measurement makes possible finer quality tires and other rubber products.

The particle of Strontium 90 is encased in a Beta Ray gauge consisting of two units. One unit, a stainless steel box containing the Strontium 90, is placed below the fabric.

Several inches above the fabric, just over the lower unit, is a cylindrical chamber that collects and records radiation which comes through the fabric from the radio-active material below.

THE SLIGHTEST variation in thickness or weight of the sheet permits more radiation to pass through and register on the detector. These variations are recorded on a delicate gauge that is part of the device.

Eight students from the speech department of Arlington Heights township high school, accompanied by their instructor, Clayton Mott, participated in the district speech contest held March 8 at Evanston township high school, and each of the local students received a rating.

Their honor ribbons will be presented to them by Mott at a high school assembly March 13. Evanston high school won first place and Arlington high won second place, scoring 27 out of a possible 40 points.

Winners of second-place ratings are: Blyth Morrow in oratorical declamation, Leigh Petersen in verse speaking, and Judy Peterson in serious reading.

Winners of third-place ratings are: Bill Bowman in original oratory, Richard Carlson in radio speaking, Barbara Ewert in original monologue, Sue Henning in humorous reading, and Dan Walton in extemporaneous speaking.

As a result of placing in the district contest, the eight winners will represent Arlington Heights in the sectional speech contest to be held at Elgin high school March 29. Members of the debate squad will also compete in the sectional contest by virtue of their scores in a series of debates. A tenth entry will be the drama, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," which is being directed by Miss Sylvia Moller, dramatics coach. The cast includes Bill Bowman, Joan Bernthal, Bob Pearson, Violet Jeffrey, Sue Henning, and Joan Mette.

Lifting gasses

Both hydrogen and helium are lighter than air, and so can be used to fill balloons to lift objects. Helium is widely used nowadays because it will not burn and is therefore much safer, even though its lifting power is not quite as great. To lift a weight of one pound requires about 13 cubic feet of hydrogen or about 14 cubic feet of helium, at normal atmospheric pressure.

LOOK LADIES . . . DO YOU CRAVE to dump your decorating problem in someone's capable lap??? I've just learned that Marcia Johnson (she's Mrs. Art Johnson, wife of Art of the Country Cobbler) has just resigned from John A. Colby's where she worked for years as decorator and buyer . . . she has decided to offer her services as counselor and guide in decorating to women who are not quite sure about color, furniture and fabrics . . . 18 years of experience in this field, both in California and here, give her a marvelous background as a skillful and qualified person to do this . . . says Marcia Johnson, "Women today have an innate appreciation and awareness of the rightness of a completed house or room. They know what they want . . . but often at Colby's they would come to me, begging them to help them coordinate their ideas . . ." and she adds, "The final picture should reflect the owner's tastes and preferences, not the decorators. She is there to assist, to advise and bring out a definite IDEA and PLAN from the bewildered and sometimes jumbled impressions that are in the customer's mind" . . . so there you are, ladies . . . if you're planning a new home, or re-doing a room, call MARCIA JOHNSON . . . she has assisted architects with the complete color scheme and furnishing of a new home . . . and innumerable home owners; . . . if YOU don't know just where to start, call Marcia Johnson at Palatine 953 . . .

THE RECIPE FOR March 7 is Shishkabobs, which is a food that originated from Armenian kitchens . . . Ethel Garry, of Inverness, gave this one to me, and it is really quite simple to prepare . . .

You'll need about a pound of lamb, cut in one-inch squares, a dash or two of oregano, or marjoram . . . sliced onions, green pepper, fresh tomato slices, some wine and vinegar.

Marinate the lamb pieces in a casserole in which you've made up a marinade of ½ wine and ½ weak vinegar . . . slice onions into this and let marinate for several hours . . . put lamb, onion, (using the slices from the marinade), green pepper and tomato on skewers, repeating until the skewer is as full as you want it . . . broil in your stove, or over hot coals in your fireplace . . . Excellent served with pink rice, which is made by boiling rice in lamb broth instead of water, and adding tomato puree for color.

Ethel Garry enjoys preparing unusual and exotic dishes and says she got this one from an Armenian restaurant she visited in New York . . . She enjoys gardening, and has many clever and artistic ways with branches, vines, and leaves which she uses in arrangement in her home . . . this petite, chic housewife and mother of two children is also clever with sewing machine and needle, and has produced some beautiful items for her wardrobe . . . because she and her husband Mike enjoy visiting places that offer unusual and different food, I want to tell them, and you about Fannie's, of Evanston, Illinois.

I visited Fanny's for the first time last Wednesday evening. What a place! And what an extraordinary person is Fanny herself! I can understand why her superb Italian cuisine draws people from all over the United States and Europe . . . She is in all the best Gourmet's books, guides, and lists in our fair land and across the seas . . . the outstanding personalities of today make a trip to Fanny's a "must," as evidenced by the photographs so lavishly and gratefully dedicated to Fanny and her delicious food . . . and her book of "cards" from the greats in the theatrical, business and every other field you can mention is tremendous . . . one of the country's leading business men sent her 3 dozen roses after hearing her extraordinary story from her own lips . . . he was so impressed with her success as an entrepeneur of food and her marvelous diligence and her fortitude . . . she started in 1946 with a small capital but unlimited enthusiasm . . .

She told me she worked night after night, concocting a salad dressing that would be unlike any other you ever tasted . . . and she succeeded! . . . Her three other specialties are spaghetti, southern fried chicken and charcoal broiled steaks . . . she has been offered up to 10,000 dollars for her recipes . . .

The restaurant is cozy and candle-lit; on the walls you'll see her good taste reflected in good paintings and water colors, hung in sociable intimacy as if Fanny could not resist one more exquisite scene or likeness . . . on one wall there is a long shelf crammed with well-used books . . . for Fanny is not only an artist with food; she also loves books, and she writes fascinating articles for her column which advertises her restaurant . . . sometimes she dwells on philosophy; other times a whole column will be dedicated to a distraught person whom Fanny cheers and encourages with kindness and learning with her facile and gifted pen . . . she will devote paragraphs at other times to personages she has met, or who have visited her, and write generous words about their successes . . . she praises the food in other restaurants . . . she stressed Quality, and credits much of the success of her place to the fact that she uses only butter in her spaghetti sauces and the finest of all ingredients . . . in fact, she probably uses more butter than any restaurant of its size in the whole country . . .

She is assisted by her husband, Ray Lazzar . . . Fannie adds interest and glamour by her very presence . . . she is a tall, dark-haired, woman of Italian descent, with beautiful large dark eyes, and a warm personality which has undoubtedly contributed to her fame . . . she was wearing an exquisite original Fontana gown of black satin last Wednesday . . . well, now, I know you will want to visit Fanny's some day soon, to satisfy "Appetite, that universal wolf." This quote from Shakespeare is printed on Fanny's menu . . .

Changing transport

A century or more ago farmers brought milk to city homes in cans hanging from yokes on their shoulders. Today the distribution of milk in the United States involves about 190,000 motor trucks alone, not to mention the extensive use of railroad transport.

Thank You For Telling Us How To Plan Jewel Stores

20th BIRTHDAY 1932 1952 Jewel Food Stores

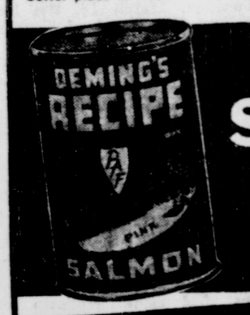

Thanks to you we keep learning how to run grocery stores the way you want them run. Following your advice has made Jewel stores grow and grow.

Back in 1934 Jewel's business was not good . . . so we came to you with our problem. Jewel representatives visited 18,389 Chicago homemakers . . . a big job — but well worth it. You gave us the answers.

By following your advice we're doing 25 times as much business as we did then. 1932 to 1952 our 20th Birthday and you're still helping us grow. You have brought more jobs and better jobs, not only to Jewel people, but to people from whom we buy.

Thanks again for making Jewel a better place to work . . . and a better place to trade.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

That the foundation of true happiness is in living and loving good (God), which brings its own reward both here and hereafter, will be explained in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 16. The title of the Lesson-Sermon is "SUBSTANCE."

The Golden Text is from II Timothy, "The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his."

Bible selections (King James Version) in the Lesson-Sermon include these passages:

"Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; . . . Laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life" (I Tim. 6: 17, 19).

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, include:

"We cannot build safely on false foundations. Truth makes a new creature, in whom old things pass away and 'all things are become new.' Passions, selfishness, false appetites, hatred, fear, all sensuality, yield to spirituality, and the superabundance of being is on the side of God, good . . . Hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true, and you will bring these into your experience proportionately to their occupancy of your thoughts" (pp. 201, 261).

In the Shadow of + + + The Steeple

by William O. McGill

Lent is a season of sacrifice. Persons "give up" movies, or smoking, or some other personal luxury for Lent. This may be all right provided we know why we "give up" whatever we do.

The effort to make a personal sacrifice is ordinarily a possible method of increasing our personal understanding of the God who gave His only Son for us. The odd thing about understanding the God who gave His only Son for us is that He cannot be understood by you all by yourself.

The Son of God came to the world not to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved. Even though you go to God with all manner of personal sacrifice during Lent, you do not find Him. You only find Him when you take your brothers with you.

FINDING GOD in this sense is not the same thing as being found by God. God finds us in the dark valleys of our lives; God slips in even when we build defenses against Him. Only those who have been found by Him are in a position to initiate efforts to find Him in fuller relationships at Lent, or at other times.

If you have to take your concern for your brothers with you when you seek to know God better, there is an excellent way available to you. It is known as "One Great Time of Sharing," and the Christians of nearly 25 denominations, numbering almost 25 million people, are preparing to find it. This is the effort of these churches to make special extra gifts for relief to people who need direct material assistance. It is an extra, over and above the regular benovolence gifts to missionary work which each church conducts. The Sunday when we participate in One Great Hour of Sharing is March 23, and the hour is your regular hour of morning worship.

What are you giving up for Lent? How many movies? How many packs of cigarettes? What would they normally cost you? Double it, or triple it—for a man should not serve God with that which costs him nothing, and the money saved by not doing something has not really been any cost to him — and dedicate it to sharing with others.

ONE OF THE effective means which has been adopted in connection with this sharing program has been the occasion of sacrificial meals. Families have served, once a week, a meal equivalent to that which "tempts the palate" of a family in Europe or India or Korea. They then balance the cost of the sacrificial meal against the average cost of a daily meal and deposit twice the amount saved in anticipation of the great hour. In this way, it becomes a family observance and the children are adequately educated in the meaning of what they are doing.

However you do it, plan to join in your church's great hour of sharing. Do it, because the grace of God has been made known to you; do it, because we are brothers in Jesus Christ; do it, because your brothers are in need of your gifts and, far more, are in need of your love.

Remember: one great hour of sharing Sunday, March 23, at the hour of your church's morning worship.

Can't use navy's new water tank

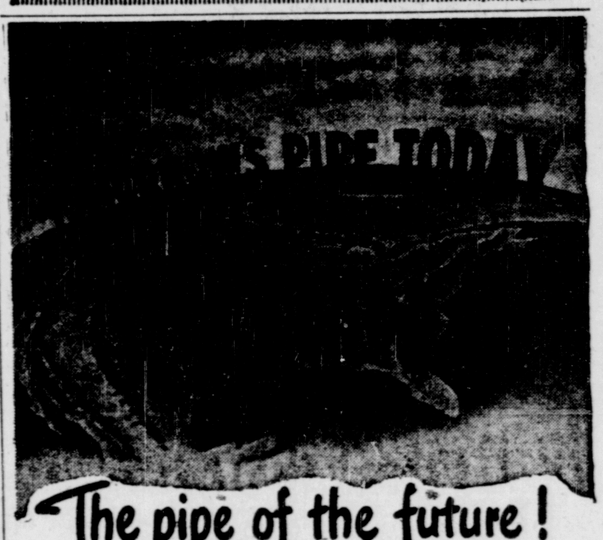

Glenview village officials were told by the Naval Air Station the navy would not be able to offer the village use of the new water tank it is constructing. This tank will replace the big concrete tank at Shermer and Glenview rds., which is scheduled for demolition because its height is a hazard on the long North-South jet runway.

Election bond issue carries; petition hampers construction

Feehanville school district polled a record vote of 430 at the special election last Saturday. The vote favoring the erection of a building was 248 to 181. The first bond issue carried 233 to 195 and the auxiliary bond issue 232 to 198.

Chief opposition came from residents in the area between Gregory and Foundry rd. in the vicinity of Elmhurst rd., which was included in voting precinct 2.

Negative votes from that area were 132, 133 and 135 on the three propositions. Favorable votes were 29, 29 and 31.

FAVORABLE votes in precinct 1 were 203, 204 and 217 with negative votes of 49, 60 and 62.

The victory is still only on paper. Petitions carrying the names of 165 persons asking a disconnection from Feehanville of an area, which will have approximately 1½ million dollars assessed valuation for attachment to Mount Prospect elementary school district, were filed Friday evening with Rollin Franzen, school treasurer of Wheeling township and Mrs. Joseph Remsing, clerk of District 26 school board.

The petition would normally come before the Wheeling township board of school trustees at their meeting April 7. An appeal by either side from the decision of the trustee would take the matter before Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools.

CERTIFICATION of the bonds cannot come until some disposition is made of the petition. With feeling running high the matter may get into the courts, which in turn may delay the construction of the new school.

At the coming April primary a county board of school trustees comprising seven members will be elected. They will assume office July 1, 1952. This board will pass upon all territorial changes, taking such responsibility off the shoulders of township school trustees.

Board formally closes Northbrook high school

The Board of Education of the Northfield Township High School District No. 225, at its meeting of March 3, 1952, adopted a resolution formally closing the Northbrook high school as of the end of the current school year in June. This resolution was made necessary by the denial of space now being used and the fact no substitute space was available. Teachers who are now on permanent tenure will be granted leaves of absence upon the recommendation of the superintendent for a period of not to exceed two years.

The action of the high school board closes the local institution which has been in operation since 1930. Intended originally as a two year school to be operated in conjunction with grades 7 and 8, as a four year junior high school unit it was never actually that. Started by farsighted leaders of the Northbrook community, it was organized to serve the children who for many years had been tuition pupils with the accompanying restrictions. On the opening morning of the new school, however, 15 pupils appeared for grades nine and ten, and seven pupils appeared desiring the work to be offered also in grade eleven. The board instructed the superintendent to revise the program and the school became immediately a three-year school until its fourth year was added by a vote of the people in 1938.

THE PRESENT superintendent of the Northfield township high school district was brought from the assistant superintendency of the Glencoe public schools to become superintendent at Northbrook and to start the new school. It was immediately accredited as a three-year school and later as a four-year school. After accreditation as a four-year school it became recognized by North Central association and has had such status since that time. During its years of operation a total of 1436 pupils have attended.

With the 54 pupils to be graduated in June 1952, 565 pupils will have graduated from Northbrook high school when it closes its doors. Many boys and girls from the Northbrook area and a considerable number from Glenview have attended Northbrook high school and many honors have been won in both academic and athletic endeavours. Although always working in restricted space the school has served a vital need in the community.

THE TOWNSHIP high school board took final action for all pupil placement for next year. June graduates of elementary district No. 34, were assigned to Niles township high school earlier. June graduates of Districts 27, 28, 30 and 31, were assigned to Palatine township high school. Northbrook high school freshmen will attend Palatine next year as sophomores. Northbrook's present sophomores and juniors are being allowed to choose between Arlington Heights and Palatine. For junior and senior status next year, according to preliminary enrollments, it would appear the Northbrook group prefers to remain together and the majority are planning to attend Palatine township high school.

The superintendent stressed again the necessity for all pupils to secure a permit from his office before tuition will be approved. The board established a ceiling of $500.00 for all tuition of pupils issued permits after this date. Pupils now attending tuition schools will have full tuition paid at that school. The district has received instructions in writing from New Trier and Maine township high schools to the effect that no additional students will be received but that pupils now enrolled will be allowed to continue. The superintendent's office will respect that request and issue no further permits to those schools.

SHOPPING with SHARON

I found the perfect solution to all my gift problems Monday at Karstens-Helbig Jewelers. In fact, I wish I had a birthday coming up soon, so I could throw a few hints around.

Karstens-Helbig have received a complete line of Farrington jewel boxes in all colors and sizes. My favorite is the Marquise . . . I've never seen anything like it. It's large and roomy and features a unique tuckaway tray that lifts out. This separate compartment that's a tiny jewel box itself has an earring bar, a ring slot, a place for necklaces and a plump velvet pin cushion . . . an ideal must for college students or anyone who travels.

The smaller compact Princess for earrings, rings and other jewelry . . . the Empress that will hold a wardrobe of jewels and has a smooth gliding tray fitted with an earring bar and ring slot . . . the Peeress, an earring case . . . the Keepsake and the Page, a trinket box and a perfect little travel jewel case — these are the Farrington jewelry boxes at Karstens-Helbig.

But the ultimate in gem-quality jewel cases is the Chinese Empress and Chinese Princess, fashioned like those above, but covered with exquisite brocade in the finest shades. You'll love them.

Cookies and milk . . . my favorite snack, dessert, etc. After four years at school most of my friends know about this, and wherever I'm a week-end guest I am told that they have plenty of cookies. It's becoming a little embarrassing.

But you can't beat the Arlington Cake Box for delicious cookies. Have you tried those turtles . . . a tempting combination of pecans, chocolate covered, just like the candies . . . or the macaroons and meringue cookies? They also have the largest meringue cups that are so good filled with fruit or ice cream.

Friday and Saturday features are date and nut bread and orange bread, and their cinnamon bread is a daily feature.

LETTERS of Judge Banks ... to his daughter

My dear Daughter:

Your cousin John is buying a home of his own. Did you know that buying a home today is just like paying rent to yourself?

It's a fact. The banks know all about building and financing. They can fix up payments for no more, and often less, than your rent. They are encouraging home ownership by making loans on easy payments

What counts is that you're actually buying your home, and you can manage it out of income. Having home grown vegetables... a yard for the youngsters ... these are things that make owning a home a pleasure.

Owning a home isn't just a matter of pride, or looking like a solid citizen. IT'S A TRADITION OF OUR AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE.

Love, Dad

Camera club award goes to Howard Hyde

The Arlington Heights camera club met Thursday with feature of the meeting the monthly print competition. This competition is between members in both class "A" and "B." The awards are based on print quality, pictorial quality, and composition. The class "B" award wound up in a dead heat between John Otzen and Tom Dockery. The Otzen picture was "The Welder" and the Dockery dandy "Fodder Bin." Paul Stadelman placed third with "Shadows in Granite."

The class "A" award went to Howard Hyde with a print Mr. Hyde took on his trip through Europe. The title was "A Swiss Village." Second place was won by C. B. Schaeffer Jr., with a classic snow scene called "Frigid Throne." Lew Green was third with "Dr. Mathes."

March 20 is the date of the annual mixed event at camera club headquarters. This is the night when clubbers bring wives to the meeting. After the program, refreshments will be served.

Measuring snow

The Weather Bureau usually measures the fall of snow at the bottom of a standard eight-inch rain gauge, which is essentially an open-ended can, eight inches in diameter and about two and a half feet high. The snow is leveled off to cover the bottom at a uniform depth, which, measured in inches, is the amount of snowfall during a particular period. The snow is then melted and measured, to get the equivalent amount of liquid water in the snowfall.

IN MEMORIAM

M/Sgt. H. Rotzall passed away March 13, 1951.

How often do I tread the path
That leads me to the grave,
Where rests the one we loved so well
But whom we could not save.
Long days, long nights, you have your pain
Waiting for cure but all in vain.
God saw that you were suffering
And the hills were hard to climb
So He closed your weary eyes
And whispered peace be thine.

Loving wife, son and both parents.

MAC SAYS

BY G. A. McELROY

Sixty-four schools have thus far survived tournament elimination in basketball which will end a week from Saturday night with the crowning of the 1952 state champion. With sectional first round Wednesday and Thursday, and finals Friday of this week, only 16 will remain for the state tournament "Sweet Sixteen" and the battle for top cage honors next week at Champaign. Locally there are two sectionals at Waukegan and Hinsdals. The winners of these two suburban sectionals are again this year drawn in the same bracket of the state tournament.

Hebron will win sectional easier than regional

At Waukegan it appears to us that Hebron will have a much easier time than they did in the regional. Barrington, Niles, and DeKalb hardly rate with such teams as Elgin, Crystal Lake, and Dundee. So it looks like Hebron will go to the state, barring the worst upset of the entire season. Hebron beat Barrington, 83-39, in a scheduled game late in February and the Green Giants meet the Bronchos in the first round. Niles and DeKalb certainly do not rate any stronger, if as strong, as Barrington. Hebron is still our pick to win the state tournament though no district winner has ever taken the coveted championship. The closest any district winner ever came to it was Braidwood who lost to Dundee in the 1938 finals.

We pick Thornton to win Hinsdale sectional

At Hinsdale three strong teams will be matched. Wednesday favored Thornton of Harvey meets a not-so-strong Wheaton team, and Thursday LaGrange, West Suburban champ and regional conqueror of Morton, will oppose potent Oak Park. We do not think any of these teams are as good as Hebron who, in mid season, trounced Oak Park quite soundly. Thornton probably has the most all round class and is our pick to go to the state.

Pick state semi-finalists

In the state tournament last week if sectionals run true to form there appear to be two very strong teams in each bracket. We refer to Centralia and West Rockford in the upper bracket and Hebron and Rock Island in the lower section. We think these four will be the semi-finalists with Hebron and Centralia in the final.

Two of top downstate teams upset in regionals

The fact two of the top rated teams in the state were upset by little schools in the regional finals may make Hebron's task a bit easier. Homer nipped strong Danville and Madison, a district winner, beat Collinsville to eliminate two of the state's best. Whether the two victors are really that good or just had a hot night remains to be seen and the chances are against either continuing on to the state tournament.

Niles and Lake Forest upset big schools at Waukegan

When it comes to upsetting the regional dope you have to hand it to the Niles Trojans. Rated seventh out of eight teams in the regional pairings Niles came through a field which included New Trier, Highland Park, Waukegan, and Evanston of their own Suburban League who had all beaten them during the season. The Trojans lost a lot of games but were ready at tournament time and, led by all-Suburban league Bob Howard, beat Lake Forest by two points in the regional finals. Lake Forest, upset winner over New Trier and Highland Park, was a real credit to the North Suburban conference.

Suburban regionals set records for fouls

The officiating is all in favor of the team on offense these days and tournament foul calling is much more strict than during the season. These conclusions follow the reports of many of the suburban area regional games. At the LaGrange regional LaGrange and Argo each had 35 fouls called on them for 70 violations in a single game and each sank 28 free throws.

In fact, in the tournament LaGrange sank 71 free throws in three games. Waukegan bowed out of their own regional in a game where they were charged with 47 fouls and lost seven of their ten players on personals and two of the three finishing the game and four of them at its conclusion. The greater emphasis in present day basketball on individual offense has made for high scoring and many more defensive fouls.

Arlington must have been at their worst against Grayslake

We saw Arlington Heights play only once this season and no team can be judged on one performance. However, we would say that Coach deGreeff of Arlington has performed miracles in winning so many considering the caliber of material available. Either the Cards were at their worst of the season in the regional tournament or the West Suburban league, except LaGrange, was at a new low in basketball strength. Probably both statements are at least partly true. Jay Vawter certainly had his worst night against Grayslake and without him the little Cardinals did not have a chance.

Barrington's balanced team play won regional

If anyone had suggested Fred Cochran would score less than 10 points in the championship game we would have conceded Palatine the victory without question. Still he got just one free throw, yet the Bronchos won. Add to that the fact that Palatine played their best game of the season and you can readily see Barrington's team balance is reason for their success.

Chuck Hohfelder really came into his own for Barrington and saved the day in that final game with his eight baskets. And for Palatine it was Don Buenzow's great playing which carried Palatine to the finals and close to a victory over Barrington.

Track squad of nine veterans still indoors

Spring has sprung,
The grass has riz,
Where last year's
Losing cagers is.

And along with signs of spring at Arlington Heights high school can be heard the patter of running feet in the hallways as Coach Russ Attis' track hopefuls mark time until the snow is gone and the squad can move outside.

Track practice, indoor, that is, has never been more than a conditioning period at any school without indoor facilities. Arlington is no exception with Coach Attis spending more time on conditioning of boys than anything else. When the squad moves outside the schedule will change.

NINE LETTERMEN are back at Arlington with Norbert Leckband heading the list. Norbert suffered an injury this past week while pole vaulting. He'll be counted upon for the hurdles, pole vault and relays. The only other veteran hurdler back for Coach Attis' Palatine Relays champions is Chris Kent.

Five boys are rated sprinters, including Tom and Mike Theis, Louis Barkhausen, Carroll Werner and George Keithley.

Werner doubles in the broad jump while Keithley also sees service in the 220 and 440.

THE TWO OTHER lettermen certain to see action include Roger Ragland in the 440 and 880, and Bill Klink in the 880. Thirty-three boys have been out for practice, officially started Monday of last week.

Some of the boys have been working out once a week in Northwestern university fieldhouse. Participation in the AAU meet at the University of Chicago Saturday brought no winners locally.

'A' club whips faculty, 66-51

Arlington Heights "A" club cagers whipped the faculty, 66-51, Tuesday night in the new gym with Jim Intravartolo and Itchy Carlson leading the scoring parade for the winners. Top men for the losers were Bus Ormsbee and John Ligon. The game was close the first three quarters, but the ten minute periods proved too much for the faculty cagers as they ran out of gas.

The faculty led the first quarter, 17-16, were behind, 26-25 at intermission, then started to drop in the third segment, 43-40. Curtis Larsen, the "Man from Mars," coached the old men in the absence of Wally Grace, who was under questioning by an attorney regarding shaving of points in previous faculty "A" club games.

PLAYING FOR the "A" club were Bill Lynk, Bob Simmons, Dick Tang, Mike Theis, Tom Meyer, Bill Knoeppel, Charles Knapp, Roger Ragland, Ray Holmes and Don Lockhart.

May hang SRO at wrestling bout Mar. 29

Verne Gagne, one of wrestling's top sensations, will square off against the veteran Fred Von Schacht in the featured match when some of television's top grapplers meet March 29 in a benefit show at the new Arlington Heights high school gymnasium. Proceeds from the program, expected to be one of the best ever presented in the Chicago area, will go into the Lions charity fund.

The Gagne-Von Schacht battle will be two out of three falls with a one hour time limit. A one fall match with a 30 minute time limit will pit Billy Goelz against the Great Balbo. Four more TV favorites, Rudy Kay and Al Williams and Farmer Don Marlin and Art Bull, are scheduled to go a tag team match. It will be the best out of three team falls with an hour time limit.

LIONS HANDLING the tickets report advance sales have been beyond expectations and anyone planning to attend the show is urged to make definite arrangements now. Main floor and first balcony reserved seats are selling for $2.60 each. Some 500 unreserved seats will go on sale at the box office the night of the show at 7 p.m.

This will be the Lions second benefit wrestling show and this year's program seems sure to easily fill the new gym's 4,000 seats. The first match will be at 8:30 p.m.

Palatine pushes Barrington 'til last 2 minutes, then falls

Barrington took their second regional tournament in a row and their 23rd victory in 26 games Friday night as they defeated Palatine, 51-46, in one of the best ball games of the season. The Pirates, who had pushed Barrington hard in two previous defeats, were still in the game Friday night with a tie score and two and one-half minutes to play.

Seven field goals in ten shots in the first period shoved Barrington into a 15-11 first quarter lead but the Bronchos' shooting was cold thereafter and Palatine went into a 24-23 half time lead. The tempo of the game slowed in the second half and after Buenzow and Abrahamson got three fouls the Palatine rebounding edge shifted and McGowan's rebounding for Barrington in the final period had much to do with the final victory.

With less than three minutes to go Tinker Meyer of Palatine developed a bad case of stomach cramps and had to be helped off the floor but a basket was scored by the Bronchos before time was called. Right away Chuck Hohfelder, who led the Bronchos with 17 points, took advantage of Palatine defensive lapse to register a layup. That was all the Bronchos needed as they stalled out the remaining time.

Buenzow closes prep career with tourney scoring honors

Don Buenzow, who led all tournament scorers with 64 in three games, collected 15 points the final game and played one of the finest games of his career. Paul Schrage and "Tinker" Meyer also looked especially good for the Pirates. Fred Cochran, Barrington's scoring ace, got only one point in contrast to 32 the previous night but Barrington's well balanced team won anyway with Hohfelder, McGowan and Berghorn handling most of the scoring.

It was by far the best game Palatine has played this year and the biggest crowd of Palatine people to see the Pirates play in any game this season traveled to Barrington hoping to see the Broncho streak over the Pirates come to an end.

Barrington reached the finals by beating Wauconda, 80-47, in the first round and then routing Libertyville, 65-36, in the semi-finals. Fred Cochran set a regional record with 32 points against Libertyville.

Palatine swamped Northbrook, 72-39, in the opening round as Don Buenzow netted 26 points and "Tinker" Meyer 16. Palatine led, 32-12, at half time. Nine Pirates broke into the scoring column.

Buenzow leads Pirates to semi-final victory

In the semi-finals Palatine bested Grayslake, 51-46. The Pirates gained a seven point lead in the first half after missing a dozen shots before getting their first field goal. Big Don Buenzow got ten baskets in 30 tries from the field and a total of 23 points before he fouled out.

Grayslake's hopes of catching the Pirates with Buenzow out go no where as six-foot-four John Busch took over to handle rebounds and came through with five points in the final four minutes. All ten of Grayslake's squad scored from the field but no one had more than two buckets.

Cards lose to Grayslake

Arlington Heights bowed out of the tournament in the first round by losing to Grayslake, 48-40. The Cards reverted to their poorest playing form of the season and after a six-all tie at the quarter were always behind. Jay Vawter, all West Suburban league player, was outplayed by Grayslake's Pech and only scored three times from the field. Pech scored 15 points and dressed early with five personal fouls.

First practice for Card nine next Monday

Pitching, first and third—those are the big problems for Arlington Heights high school baseball coach "Pappy" Grace, as he issued first call for organizational meeting for Thursday of this week. Initial varsity practice, with gloves and gym shoes, is set for Monday, March 17.

"Pitching is the biggest single factor in high school ball," stated Grace Tuesday as he spoke of returning lettermen, "and just how much Bob Simmons and Tom Meyer have improved since last year will decide Arlington's year on the diamond."

Both boys are seniors, and ranked behind Bob Baker, number one twirler for the Cardinals last year. Boys up from the frosh-sophs include southpaw Tom Reed, Jerry Scheuber and Herb Wickstrom. Wayne Brumm, a freshman, also will bear watching, according to some.

FIRST AND THIRD sacks are big problems for Coach Grace. At first he'll try Gene Dassonville and John Eakins, both seniors. At third will be the same two boys, senior Hans Schmidt and junior Dennis Straus.

Catching is taken care of by all-league Jim Intravartolo, with either Herb Rickert or Charles Verret backing him up in event of injury. Bill Lynk at short is also rated OK with Ronnie Grace having a secure hold on second. If Wayne Hesch, with two years' service remaining, can take over the middle sack, Grace may be moved to the outfield.

THE OUTFIELD is headed by Hans Schmidt, senior letterman, with boys not making the other team positions filling in the fly catching jobs. Others to be considered are four juniors, Straus, Marshall Dahlstrom, Jerry Dallstream and Herb Gorder.

Three sophomores who may see varsity service include Bob Dotts, Dave Ryden and Roger Thomas. Baseball coaching staff has been cut this year to two men, Grace and "Bus" Ormsbee.

Complete schedule will be released next week. The local nine will open April 7 against Hinsdale, here, then travel to Niles April 9 and Maine April 10.

Complete list of letter winners back this season include Simmons, Meyer, Intravartolo, Grace, Lynk, Schmidt, Dassonville and Rickert.

Name first picks for college all stars vs Trotters

Leroy Leslie, the hottest basketball scorer Notre Dame has ever known, became the first player named to the 1952 college All-American squad that will oppose the famous Harlem Globetrotters in the 15-game world series of basketball, March 30-April 13.

Leslie, who this year broke every major scoring record in Fighting Irish history, is to be joined by nine or 10 more of the season's greatest senior players for the series that includes a game at Chicago Stadium Saturday April 5.

LESLIE, a 6-3 forward from Johnston, Pa., wound up his brilliant career 10 days ago with a 32-point barrage against De Paul in Chicago Stadium for a new single game scoring record by an Irish player. The big night gave him a total of 367 points for the season, and 973 for his three-year varsity career, both new marks in Notre Dame history.

Despite his slim build — he weights approximately 180 — Leslie ranks as an extremely durable cager, having started 73 games for Notre Dame during his three years, one more than the previous record of 72 starting assignments set by Leo Barnhorst.

The College All-American squad will assemble on March 29 in New York for the opening game of the tour at Madison Square Garden on Sunday, March 30. The star 1952 collegians will be bidding for revenge on the Trotters who have won both previous series, by an 11-7 margin in 1950 and 14-4 last year.

Pabst keglers to roll twice this week

Bob Roman's Pabst bowling team lost to Marquette Paper team of the K. of C. League by 127 pins Sunday. The Pabst team fell behind in the first game with the deficit too much. Al Kazmer led both teams with 191, 241 and 202 for a 634 series. Lou Haake, Jr., was high for Pbst with 595.

Sunday, March 16, the Pabst team will meet Rudy Kraft's Recreation at the Mt. Prospect alleys at 6 p. m. The Pabst team won the match between these teams in Chicago and hope to make it 2 in a row.

Saturday, March 15, the Pabst team will meet the Libertyville Merchants at Des Plaines at 8 p. m. In four meetings this season each team has won two matches. The rubber match will be bowled on neutral alleys at Des Plaines.

On track squad

Verne Busse of Arlington Heights was one of ten track men who represented Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at the first meet of the season for Coe at North Central college, Naperville.

Entered with four other Coe athletes in the two-mile relay, Busse and his team mates placed third in that event for colleges in the under 1,000 enrollment class.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Verne Busse, 900 N. State rd.

Wheeling Blackhawks capture North Shore and Winnetka titles

Whirlwind six points in final 75 seconds means 48-47 win

Coming from behind in the final minute of the game, the Wheeling Blackhawks beat Conney's Cagers, 48-47, to win the North Shore basketball league championship last week Tuesday. The Hawks were never ahead throughout the game and with only 1:15 left they pulled their "Hollywood finish" to win the title in their first year of league play.

Conney's opened the scoring on a set shot by Wiley, then added two more baskets before the Hawks' Eddie Kostka scored on a drive-in. Shortly after, the peppery Kostka suffered a nasty cut above the right eye and was forced to leave the game. Score at the end of the first quarter was 14-11, Conney's leading.

THE CAGERS moved ahead, 20-11, shortly after the start of the second quarter, while their defense held the Hawks to just three field goals for the entire period. However, the Blackhawks capitalized on nine penalty shots awarded, sinking six. At the intermission, Conney's still maintained a three point advantage, 26-23.

The Hawks moved to within one point of the Cagers, when Roy Anderson scored on a ten foot jump shot to open the third quarter. But Conney's came right back on successive baskets by Allans and Haider to lead, 30-25. In the segment, both teams scored ten scores and Conney's led, 36-33, going into the final period.

THE FOURTH quarter started rather slow, with Conney's getting the tip and playing a more deliberate game than in the previous three periods. Although the Cagers scored only two times from the floor, the more aggressive Hawks gave them ten penalty shots of which they made seven. With a five point lead over the locals, and just 1:15 left to play in the game, it looked as if Conney's were to be champs.

The Hawks' Paul Roche grabbed a Conney's reboud and with three men on his back drove the length of the floor to score. The Hawks were now using a full-court press and Bob Sander intercepted the Cagers' pass, as they tried to put the ball back in play, and drove in to score.

AGAIN THE Cagers tried to put the ball back in play, and again Bob Sander leaped into the air to grab the ball. With only :05 remaining in the game, Sander passed to Roche, who swished the ball through the net on a 25 foot set shot. A last second desperation shot by Conney's failed, and the Blackhawks became 1951-52 North Shore league champions. Final score of the game was 48-47.

Northbrook to have 'Little League' baseball

This summer Northbrook will stage the biggest summer sports program for boys from 8 to 12 years old ever undertaken by the town.

Northbrook will have an official "Little League" baseball organization involving four teams completely outfitted by the Chicago White Sox and capably coached by hand-picked Northbrook men experienced both in sports and in working with boys. These four teams will play 18 games against each other between the middle of May and the end of August.

Berschet fourth

Marv Berschet, Arlington Hts. captain of the Illinois track team, ranked fourth in the Big Ten conference event Saturday while his mates took the meet. He put the shot 48'3". Marv's big event is the discus, not on the indoor schedule.

Hebron rallies twice to win

Hebron's Green Giants came from behind the regional finals at Elgin Friday night to nose out the host school, 49-47, and keep alive their hopes for the state championship. The Judson twins each scored in the final two minutes to nip Elgin's Maroons but it was six-foot-ten inch Bill Schultz who provided most of Hebron's scoring punch for the evening with 23 points.

Hebron had to come from behind the night before to whip Crystal Lake, 61-46. They trounced Woodstock 95-45 in the opening round. Elgin beat Grant, 54-35, and Dundee, 50-40, to reach the finals.

Bill Schultz of Hebron led tournament scorers with 51 points followed by Krumm of Elgin with 49. However, Schneider of Crystal Lake had the best average of 45 in two games followed by Allen of Dundee with 40 in two contests.

Hebron will play Barrington in the first round of the sectional at Waukegan.

Niles upsets all the way to win

Niles, seventh seeded team, beat fifth seeded Lake Forest, 49-47, in the finals of the Waukegan regional tournament Friday night. Lake Forest, led by high scoring Gordon Hannah, who scored 20 points, had a seven point margin, 31-24, at half time. Niles outscored the Scouts, 17-6, in the third period and held on to gain the chance to advance to the sectional. Bob Howard paced the winning Trojans with 21 points. Niles will meet DeKalb, 71-47 victor over Hinckley, in the first round of the sectional also to be played at Waukegan.

Lake Forest defeated top seeded New Trier, 49-47 in the opening round when Gordon Hannah, six-foot-seven center, poured in 31 points. The Scouts then disposed of second seeded Highland Park, 50-40, in the semi-finals.

Niles' Trojans beat third seeded Waukegan in the opening round, 54-46, leading all the way in a hectic game which saw seven Waukegan players leave the floor on personal fouls with the team finishing with but three players. Niles whipped Evanston handily in the semi-finals, 51-39.

High scorers of the tournament were Bob Howard of Niles with 64 points and Gordon Hannah of Lake Forest with 64.

Oak Park squeezed by York of Elmhurst in an overtime in the semi-finals of the Glenbard regional, but found Proviso no problem in the championship game winning 80-57. A 28 point splurge in the second quarter gave Oak Park a 45-24 margin at the intermission.

Chuck Mead, whose basket moved Oak Park by York in the overtime semi-final contest, was high scorer of the championship game with 27 points.

Chuck Mead won tournament scoring honors with 59 points although failing to score from the field in the opening game against Maine Township.

Nine Glenbard cagers in last game in regional

Nine Glenbard seniors ended their playing career last week in a game that will be remembered as one of the best performances of the season.

Although edged by a tall Proviso quintet, 44-43, the Bards stole the show with a last quarter rally that had every one in the packed gymnasium on their feet.

The Hilltoppers started off with a rally that set them in the lead, 9-6, at the end of the initial frame. They forged ahead for the first few minutes of the second round but Proviso turned on the steam to step out in front, 13-12, when Jim Osborn tipped in a two-pointer. The Bards never regained that lead after that.

THE PIRATES crept ahead in time lead. They stretched that the second period for a 19-17 half margin by two points in the third frame as they outhit the locals, 15-13, in a high scoring free for all.

In the final stanza, the Bards set their scoring machine into operation. They started out slow and didn't get moving until the middle of the frame when the visitors were coasting along ith a 40-36 advantage.

John Wise grabbed a rebound and tipped it in to slice Proviso's margin. Shinn swished a long set shot to regain those lost points. However, Wise dumped in a charity throw to pick up a point and Dick Weichenhain did a repeat performance at the free throw line to slice away another point from the Pirate's lead.

WITH ONLY 1:57 left in the game, the Bards employed a full court defense in last-minute desperation. Weichenhain connected on a long shot sent Glenbard fans into a frenzy. John Wise added a free toss which shorted the visitors to a single point margin.

The Pirates took the ball down court with only 56 seconds left. Shin cashed in on a charity to give the Proviso club a two point margin. The Bards' aggressive play toward the end resulted in three more fouls but the Pirates failed to capitalize on two of them. Glenbard finally got control of the ball and Dick Weichenhain potted a long set shot just as the buzzer sounded ending the locals' chances.

LaGrange wins on final free throw

LaGrange, champion of the West Suburban league, scored a free throw in the final three seconds of play to take a 52-51 decision over Morton of Cicero, Suburban league title winner, in the regional finals. Ron Jecka of Morton, who scored 32 points, tied the score with seven seconds to play and then Chester Baker sank the winning free throw. LaGrange made 20 free throws to Morton's 13 and that was the answer to the question of why LaGrange was the winner.

In the semi-finals LaGrange beat Argo, 68-56, in a game in which each team was charged with 35 fouls and each sank 28 free throws. Morton whipped Riverside as Jecka caged 16 points and Wolz of Riverside bagged 24. Jecka's 70 points was the top scoring effort in Chicago area regionals.

LaGrange qualifies for the Hinsdale sectional along with Thornton of Harvey, Oak Park, and Wheaton.

Underclassmen carry hopes of Glenbard track

What the Glenbard track team does this season depends a great deal on the effectiveness of underclassmen. Only six seniors will be available to aid the small crop of boys who make up the squad.

Experience will, however, be the biggest deficit which Coach George Dekan will have to face when they swing into action March 22, date of the Naperville relays.

Tom Hill will be top man in the vaulting department. The junior thinclad hit 9'6" in a practice meet but is expected to go well over 10 feet consistently this season. Sophomore Chuck Picton will back Hill in the vaulting event.

DON DUFFEY and Roger Missey, a freshman, will open for the Bards in the high jumping event. Although the Hilltoppers have only one thinclad entered in the broad jumping event. Al Harp, co-captain of the team, will be one of the biggest threats in his events. Harp also heaves the shot and is a member of the relay team.

So far, however, Tom Peters has been big gun in the shot. In practice, the sophomore heaved the 12-pound weight 44 feet. Ronnie Walker, late in starting because of basketball, will also give the weight department a big boost.

Besides throwing the shot, Peters will be competing in the hurdles. The lanky sophomore outdid all other Glenbard entrants in the high hurdles event in the Naperville practice meet. John Ford will be competing in both hurdles events this year while teammate Don Goldner will specialize in only the low hurdles. Both Ford and Goldner have competed in sprints, also.

WHEN THE OUTDOOR track season starts, the Hilltoppers will be aided by Bruce Pipkin from Keeneyville, Harp and Peters in the discus.

Glenbard will dominate the distance events, 880 and the mile. Cross-country captain Tom Mueller will head the runners in the mile. Junior Dick Cline and senior Murray Smidt will also be depended upon to bring in some points. Mueller ran the mile in 4:49.2 in the Naperville practice meet and Cline captured second right behind Mueller.

In the half-mile event, the Bards will have an experienced entrant—Dave Clarke. Although only a junior, Clarke spent most of his time last year running the half. He clinched a first in the Redskin meet Wednesday night. In the distance events in that meet, Glenbard collected 13 out of a possible 16 points.

THE WEAKEST events of the Bard cindermen are the dashes. Although Coach Dekan will have a host of entrants, he will be faced with one problem: he doesn't have a single sprinter who is a standout.

Because of the many entrants, Glenbard's two-mile relay quartet will have a good chance to bring home some points this season. Co-captain Chuck Wertz will head the relay team. However, after competing in the 100 and 220 yard dashes for the last two years, Wartz transferred to the 440 yard sprint.

In the future

The latest comfort for Fido is an easily assembled two-room dog house with open sides and a dividing partition—it's said to give a pup plenty of air but still protect him from the elements . . . As things get better for Fido they get worse for Junior. The newest baby tender is an iron stake (which can be driven into the ground) and a leash (which can be attached to Junior) to keep the apple of your eye out of trouble when playing in the yard . . . Fire hazards of extension and lamp cords can be greatly reduced according to the maker of a new plug coupling which contains its own small fuse . . . A versatile steam ironer comes equipped with a liquid scent which, the manufacturer claims, makes the air smell sweet and the clothes fragrant . . . a heavy-duty fog nozzle which should be helpful in fighting plant fires is now available. The fog nozzle can produce a 500-gallon fog blanket per minute; has a large coverage diameter, and can spray fog for a distance of 80 feet, the producer claims.

Cheap purchase

LAST WEEK Thursday, the Blackhawks added more loot to their possession when they captured the Winnetka community house trophy by beating the Winnetka Wheelers, 63-46. The Hawks earned the right to meet the Wheelers by winning the league title. The Wheelers won the community house basketball league by taking 13 straight games without a setback. The game also marked the return of Hans Schmidt to the Wheeling line-up after playing a season of varsity basketball at Arlington Heights high school.

Paced by Jack Clark, flashy forward from Arlington Heights, and Schmidt, three time scoring champion of the Hawks, Wheeling built up a 20-5 lead in the opening period, and held a 28-15 advantage at the half. In the third quarter the Hawks built up a 20 point lead as they turned the game into a rout. The final score was 63-46. It was the Hawks' third straight victory.

Clark was the high point maker with 13 and Schmidt was runner-up with 12. Ron Cempe was high for the losers with 12.

THE FOLLOWING evening, the Blackhawks returned to the Wheeling gym to win their fourth straight game. They completed their complete conquest of Aptakisic by whipping the Stars the fourth straight time in their annual four game series. Final tally was 66-57. Although the Stars had the height advantage, the Hawks gave them a lesson in ball handling and virtually swept them out of the gym.

Bob Sander paced the Hawks with 9 field goals and 3 charity throws for 21 points. Jack Clark was runner-up for the victors with 17 markers. Dan Taggart, one of the few bright spots in the Aptakisic line up, was high for the losers with 14 points.

Bard thinclads lose to Naperville

Glenbard's track team tumbled to Naperville's thinclads last Wednesday night 56½ to 38½, in a practice meet held at the Naperville field house. The meeting was a preliminary practice for the Naperville Relays, March 22.

The Bards held their own in most events, considering the fact that the Naperville squad had the advantage of the field house.

THE HILLTOPPERS captured four events while the Redskins walked off with seven. In the high hurdles, Tom Peters tied for second while John Ford captured a second in the lows. Tom Mueller turned in the best performance in his mile run event. The Bard cinderman garnered a first while teammate Dick Cline pulled up to second place in the final lap.

Dave Clarke clinched a first in the 880 to give the Bards a clean-cut victory in the distance affairs.

In the 60-yard dash, Al Harp came in second while Ronnie Willis copped third place rating. However, Naperville made a clean sweep of the 440 sprint event.

IN THE WEIGHT department, another event the Bards captured, Tom Peters pitched the 12 pound ball 42½ feet for first place. Al Harp added another point to his individual record by tossing the shot 36 feet 8 inches which was good enough for third place.

Harp completed his track activities by placing second in the broad jump with a 19 ft. 9 inch jump. Harp captured the individual scoring race with seven points.

Hill coped third place in the broad jump and took first in the pole vaulting department with a jump of nine feet nine inches. Chuck Picton placed third as he vaulted 8 feet 6 inches.

Roger Missey was the only Bard entrant in the high jump but he picked up a point as he placed third. Both the freshmen and the varsity relay teams lost to the Redskins. However, the frosh narrowly missed out in clinching a victory in the two-mile relay.

LaGrange, Bloom loom strongest

Seventeenth annual Naperville Relays have been moved up one day with sixteen schools slated to enter the March 21 event. The frosh-soph division will be held the night before. Televising of the state basketball finals Saturday, March 22, prompted the change in date.

LaGrange of the West Suburban league holds the inside track in many of the expected individual performances, with early season records indicating Lyons township boys recording the best times.

Varsity relays will be started at 4:30 p. m. Friday, March 21, with finals in running events slated for 8 p. m.

LOCALLY SPEAKING, lack of practice and conditioning, due mainly to no indoor facilities, is preventing Arlington Heights high school from entering the meet. Palatine and Wauconda of the Northwest conference, and Glenbard of the West Suburban league are expected to compete.

Other schools entered in the meet include Bloom, East Aurora, Elgin, Hinsdale, Joliet, Naperville, Reavis, Riverside-Brookfield, Wheaton, Sandwich, York and Downers Grove.

LAGRANGE has the best marks to date in four events: Bob McKown has run the 50 yard dash in :05.5, he has pole vaulted 11'6", Dick Caffey has broad jumped 21'5½", and the Lyons township relay team has run the eight lap event in 2:30.5, faster than the current record.

Robert Bohmer and John Smith, both of York, have the best times in the 880, 2:07.8. The Elmhurst school has a leader in Dick Muessig in the shot. He's thrown the weight 44½". Hinsdale's best prospects are Elmer Busch and George Moyers in the high jump at 5'10" and 5'8", Don Vena in the shot, Jack Morehead in the 50 yard dash, Bob Deroche in the 440, and Busch and Tom Skubich in the hurdles.

Certainly one of the stronger teams in the meet will be Bloom of Chicago Heights. Bloom boys have set many of the best marks on the Naperville track this season, including the :07.4 of Wallace Branch in the low hurdles, the :07.9 of Ronald Leoni in the highs, the 4:36.5 of Clarence Jonas in the mile and Fred Farber's :55.4 in the 440.

Tri-color Magic

Unusual color combinations are big fashion news, and in this "around-town" dress Ann Foster turns out an interesting tri-color effect using Bates Disciplined cotton—the top, a rich rouge; the cummerbund in aqua; and skirt, a blackboard grey. This fabric—a seasoned favorite—is a delight to any wardrobe, for it needs no pressing between wearings. You just hang it up, the wrinkles disappear and original freshness returns. (ANS)

Oak flooring in four pre-finished grades available for homes

Among the relatively recent developments in the field of building materials is hardwood strip flooring designed for use immediately after installation.

The flooring is completely pre-finished at the mill, even to the waxing and polishing. It can be placed in service as soon as the last nail is driven. Unfinished flooring, of course, receives its finishing treatment after it has been installed.

Builders point out that the added cost of the pre-finished type is offset by the saving effected through elimination of on-site finishing.

Oak, the species of hardwood generally preferred for residential flooring, is available in four grades of pre-finished stock. Top grade is known as Prime. Standard and Better is next, followed by Standard. The fourth grade is called Tavern. Beech and pecan flooring also can be obtained in a pre-finished grade, designated as Tavern and Better.

An ice show dream come true, Ice Capades of 1952 comes to the Chicago Arena Monday, March 24, for an engagement running through Wednesday, April 9, with performances scheduled each night, as well as matinees on each Saturday and Sunday.

Highlight of the all-new revue is the presentation of Walt Disney's "Cinderella" as the top production number of the ten in the show. The number runs forty minutes and stars lovely Donna Atwood, queen of the ice, pictured above, as Cinderella and handsome Bobby Specht, king of ice show world, as the dashing Prince. Donna and Bobby attain new heights, even for them, in this amazing number, and also give generously of their talents in other appearances throughout the performance.

Lessons In . . . . English

Words Often Misused

The use of "ugly," in the sense of unpleasant, dangerous, quarrelsome, etc., is colloquial in the U. S., as "an ugly wound," "an ugly word," "an ugly-tempered person."

Do not say, "Since when have you been there?" It is much better to say, "When were you last there?"

Do not say, "We would appreciate hearing from you." Say, "We should appreciate hearing from you." Condition beyond the control of the will is expressed by "should" in the first person (singular or plural), and by "would" in the second and third person (singular or plural).

"Upon" and "on" are synonymous in such expressions as, "upon the table," "upon receipt of your letter." "On" is preferable as being the shorter of the two.

Do not say, "His action was universally condemned by all." Omit "by all," as "universally" means "including or covering all."

Palatine lad saves life of woman in Florida

A letter from Florida tells of the bravery of a Palatine boy scout, Richard Sanford, who saved a woman weighing nearly 200 pounds, from drowning at Melbourne Beach, where Mr. and Mrs. Sanford and their son are completing their winter sojourn in the south.

The letter gives few details except that Richard, hearing the woman's cries for help, went to her rescue, although he was only a lad. The woman grabbed him by his bathing suit pulling him under, but after fighting his way out of her grasp, he was able to paddle towards shore with his burden, where other swimmers helped. The boy was completely exhausted and also needed medical attention. He was rewarded for his bravery.

● THEY'RE IN TOO

With the investigation of payrolls of city, county and state proceeding at a rapid rate, the Republicans aren't the only ones finding themselves with muddy feet in the big purge business.

The G.O.P. boys can now draw a few breaths of relief as the disclosures show city employees on two or three payrolls and state employees, at least state paid workers, working in Springfield for the democratic state committee.

Added to all this, hosts of democratic employees are all messed up in horse meat scandals, cigarette tax scandals and all the rest of the unsavory publicity that goes with a house cleaning. So all the muck isn't confined to one party by a jug full, they are both in it up to their necks, but the lid blew off when the Republicans set off the big purge of the west side block and their payrollers, only to find that the big explosion set off some fireworks too close to some of the big figures themselves.

Now that the big purge is spreading out and taking in both parties, no one knows where the lightning is apt to hit next.

Governor Stevenson, unopposed for the democratic nomination for governor, is liable to find his row a tough one to hoe after the primary, when the full force of the Republican big guns will be turned on the horse meat, cigarette, and mine scandals to say nothing of escapes from the St. Charles Training school, the unkept promises of financial aid to municipalities, schools, etc., which was one of the governor's pet campaign topics while running for governor four years ago.

And while all this tumult is going on, state treasurer Bill Stratton goes methodically about the business of meeting old friends and making new ones throughout the state in his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor.

There are three automobiles assigned to the state treasurer. Stratton figured that one auto was all he could use and turned back the other two. In his budget for 1951-52, Stratton, to the surprise of everyone, submitted a budget for his office for more than $100,000 less than his predecessor had called for, remarking, "I believe that the people are tired of paying exhorbitant taxes for extravagant management in public office. I believe this reduction in our operating budget is a good example for others to follow."

Is it any wonder that with that kind of management in the state treasurer's office the people of the state are rallying behind young Bill Stratton in his bid for the G.O.P. nomination for governor, and that the support that is streaming to the Stratton banner bids fair not only to nominate him April 8 as the Republican gubernatorial candidate but also to sweep him into the governorship at the November election?

● REAL INTEREST

And speaking of elections, there is a lot of real interest being shown this year in the business of voting. The registrations in the country towns have been particularly heavy this spring. In the city the reports are less favorable on new registrations and all this may show an election trend.

The city is normally Democratic while the country towns are heavily Republican. With light registrations in the city and heavy ones in the country towns this may mean a decided Republican trend in the country as a whole, and the long time domination of Cook county by the Democratic machine which has been dented considerably in the last couple big elections may be in for still further reverses in the election this fall.

At any rate, people are actively interested in getting ready to vote, which means that the apathy of the past is melting away before the realization of civic responsibility. People want to vote this year, they intend to vote, and this quiet determination usually spells trouble for existing political machines.

Voting at primaries is usually light, but from the way the folks have registered to be able to vote at the April primary, it looks as if the April 8 primary was headed for some new records in the total number of votes cast in the country towns of Cook county.

● A LITTLE LATE

The March lion roared in a day or so late, but he got here in time to make the opening days of the month plenty lionlike with one of the biggest blizzards of the season.

Just when folks thought spring was on the way with a few early flowers blooming, the geese going north, and a robin or two having been sighted, along comes the big storm to remind us that old man winter wasn't out of the picture yet and was still to be considered in our scheme of things.

But it's getting along in March, it can't last forever, and with the sap coming up in the trees, the buds swelling, and the willows turning a brighter yellow around the marshes, the real advent of spring isn't so far away.

● USED CARS

While Tom Norman was on his recent trip to Florida, he became interested in how and why a used car lot in one of the Florida cities had so many comparatively new and fine cars for sale on the lot.

Well, when Tom wants to find out anything he goes to someone who has the answers, and in this case he went to the owner of the used car lot and asked him point blank how come there were so many nice new cars for sale on his lot.

The answer he got ran something like this, "Well, you see we aren't very far from a horse track that operates in the afternoons and a dog track that operates evenings. People come down here in fine cars to have a shot at the fun at these places, and if their luck is bad they get up against it for ready cash so they come in and trade their fine car for a cheaper one and take the balance they get in cash for a new 'bank' to use at the tracks."

"If their luck is good they may be back in a few days to buy back their nice car; if their luck has been bad they will trade again for a still cheaper car in order to get cash to operate on."

"Then if they continue to operate in hard luck, they finally bring in the latest car they have traded for and sell it for enough for bus fare or carfare back to where they came from, their big holiday in Florida over. That's why you see so many really good cars on my lot. This is a fine spot to pick up a real bargain."

And so Tom Norman had his answer as to why so many good cars were on a used car lot and how they got there. "It was a wonderful example of how not to spend a winter vacation in Florida" says Tom.

● A FINE JOB

There is one group of fellows who will be glad to see this winter and all of its snow storms come to an end, and that's the crew of village employees who have done such a fine job this winter in keeping Palatine's streets plowed out.

Those boys have worked almost around the clock on many occasions this winter and have kept at it until the job was done. Palatine has 56 miles of streets, and it took a lot of time and hard work to move all that snow off that 56 miles.

The crew worked in all sorts of weather and under all sorts of conditions, and their work has been appreciated by the public as can be seen from the many complimentary remarks about their work. Just the other day after the big snow, we heard one man remark, "Those boys have done a wonderful job. Palatine streets have been kept in better shape this winter than any town I've been in."

That, we believe, is the sentiment of the general public; it's been a tough job all winter, but it's been a job well done and one that has been appreciated by the public. The fellows are just hoping that all winters won't be like this one.

● NO INTEREST

A new resident to the area was asked if he was registered. "No." He'd just moved in and he didn't know where he voted or where to register. He was told when and where he could register. "Can't make it during those hours. Do you think I'm going to lose $1.70 per hour just to register?"

"How about voting?" he was asked. "Oh, that's different. We get paid for the time we take to vote," was the answer.

That showed how much interest a fellow like that had in government, yet it's that kind of uninterested citizen that hollers the loudest if things don't go to suit them. In fact, while all this discussion was taking place he was waiting to complain to a road official about his road.

Oh, well, it takes all sorts of people to make a world it seems, but what can you do with a guy who won't take a little of his own time to get registered and be in a position to vote and have a voice in his government?

● TAXES ON TIME

From all indications the 1951 tax bills will be on time this year, which means that the bills will be in the mail by March 31 and that the penalty date on the first installment of real estate taxes and the complete personal property tax bill will be payable before the penalty date May 1.

From the tax rates which have already been computed by the county clerk, the rates this year for most taxing units are slightly higher than last year. The increased tax levies for school purposes are given as the reason for the slight increase in the rates in the townships whose rates have already been established.

Tax bills are being made out by the department of central services as fast as the tax rates are computed by the county clerk.

● GROUNDED

The LaLondes and Hasemans, who had been expected back from their month long vacation in Texas and Florida, failed to show up, and their friends kind of had a hunch they had heard about our March lion up here and were delaying their departure from the land of sunshine to let the situation here improve a little.

Saturday afternoon Jerry Dean gave out a bulletin that he had finally heard from the tourists. Roy called him from Ocala, Fla., and asked about the weather hereabouts. Jerry gave him a glowing description of our snow, slush, rain, etc., and the travelers at once decided not to be in too big a hurry to rush into our wonderful climate.

Jerry said if all goes well they planned to get home Wednesday, so if things went well they are here now, but if they got any more bad weather reports along the way, they may have grounded themselves for a few days more just to be sure they wouldn't get here too far ahead of the robins.

More resistance

THE FENCE POST

Letters to the Fence Post should be short and concise. All letters must be signed, though name will be withheld if desired. Address Fence Post, Paddock Publications, Inc., Arlington Heights, Ill.

Stop the subdivisions

Instead of being alarmed about the possibility of industries moving in and around Arlington Heights I think the citizens of this town should be concerned about the number of new subdivisions now under development and those in the proposed stage.

In last week's Arlington Heights Herald was a story regarding the necessity of starting immediately on plans for two more public schools, sorely needed by the beginning of the 1953-54 school term.

The paper also carried a story regarding the development of three new subdivisions within the village, one big enough to hold 140 new homes.

Several years ago the village was submitted a plat for the development of Westgate, a proposed subdivision lying north and south of W. Campbell ave. and east of Wilke rd. Westgate, when opened up, will add more than 300 new homes within the village, all in Arlington Heights grade and high school districts.

Work on this subdivision was delayed due to restrictions of the State Sanitary Water board, which prohibited installing new sewer and water mains to connect with existing facilities because its present sewer and water supply were inadequate. With the approval of the proposed million dollar sewer and water extensions now "in the bag," Westgate is free to proceed with its development.

Last week approximately 60 lots on the south side of the village were sold at public sale for delinquent taxes and assessments. The developer who purchased them intends to erect homes on the lots.

The aforementioned additions to the public grade schools are a necessity, not because of this proposed future development, but because of the population already housed within the boundaries of the school district. How many more schools is Arlington Heights going to need before this residential development reaches its limitations?

"Industry," argue those against it, "will bring more families into the village, and cause an excessive burden on our already overcrowded schools."

Look around you again folks! Take a good look! What do you see? You can hardly drive down a street, turn a corner, or look out your picture window that you don't see a new home going up. Who is going to live in those homes? Families, of course! Families with children who have to be educated, who will have to go to Arlington Heights schools, which will have to be added to in order to accommodate them.

You can't blame Arlington Heights' industry for this condition. I would say you could blame the lack of industry. For if Arlington Heights would allow a few well established, first rate plants, such as the proposed Roth Mfg., to locate here, it would put several hundred acres of potential residential property out of the running.

Without a few industries to counteract the residential growth of Arlington Heights, I, personally, can see no end to building new schools or additions to existing schools, for years to come.

No, it's not the erection of a few, well chosen industries, that residents of Arlington Heights have to fear, it's the developers of new subdivisions that will eventually put this village behind the eight ball.

Alarmed
Arlington Heights.

School support

I want to thank you for the full, complete and well written article in the last issue of your paper relating to the plans of the Board of Education of District 25 for building two new school buildings.

This type of support is essential to the provisions of adequate school facilities in our district.

Robert R. Lockwood
Arlington Heights.

Who is the opposition?

Much has been said by those opposed to any additional industrial development in the Village of Arlington Heights, which question has been brought up by the proposed annexation of 70 acres of land and its proposed zoning for light industry. Those who are in favor of such additional development and those who do not oppose it have said comparatively little.

It is notable that those opposed and who are loudest in their protests are people who have moved to Arlington Hts. comparatively recently and are for the most part from those areas in which a change of ownership and turnover in residents is the highest of any in the village.

The argument is that they have chosen and moved to this community because it appeared attractive to them and offered to them and their families the advantages of good schools, church facilities and the public improvements that go with every well organized suburban community.

It seems they wish to educate their children in this community but wish, if possible, to avoid further growth and development, fearing that they and their children will be deprived of some of the present facilities and argue that their school taxes would have to be raised as the result of further industries which might result in further residential development.

They do not stop to consider who has made this village a desirable place for them to live in. This desirability has been established by the residents and taxpayers who have lived in the community for the past more than forty, fifty or sixty years. This village has spent in excess of $8,000,000 for sewer and water systems, school buildings and other public buildings.

This does not include annual taxes for repairs and maintenance but capital investments evidenced by bond issues, both general and special, and all but a comparatively small amount of these improvements have been paid for by residents and business people who were here long before the above referred to objectors.

Probably one-half of the taxpayers in our community have no children in the schools and many of them have not had any for many years.

The writer of these lines, as one, has paid taxes in this community for over forty years, has had no children in school for over twenty years and still contributed in 1951, to school taxes alone, approximately $700, although he owns no business property in the community.

This money goes to the education of other people's children and there are many, many more taxpayers in the same situation. The more permanent residents and the business men of the community feel that any development not detrimental to the community which will increase the assessed valuation and thereby the taxes that will be levied and will consequently help to carry or reduce the tax burden, is desirable.

The stabilized taxpayers are of extreme importance to a community and their desires and welfare should be also considered.

All residential suburbs near large cities have the experience that many families move into their community for the sake of their children and after their children have been raised, have had the benefit of the schools, churches and other improvements provided by the community, they leave the community.

The cry is made that we should not turn Arlington Hts. into a factory town. Everybody agrees with that. No one wishes to turn it into a factory town but, the addition of a clean, light industry, even if it is of fair size, stuck away in one extreme corner of the town behind railroad tracks, sewerage disposal plant, other industrial plants and a 200 foot non-access highway will not convert any community into a factory town.

Such an industry as contemplated and on the scale contemplated will contribute to the taxing bodies within which it would fall approximately $30,000 a year for distribution to such taxing bodies. To oppose a development of this character is the peak of shortsightedness; particularly when it appears likely that on application to the county this property might be rezoned, due to its location and surrounding features. In that event the village would get no benefits. The residents of Arlington Hts. cannot afford to take this chance.

The foregoing statements are based on facts. Those opposed have indulged in many insinuations for which they know there is no basis. Their aim is to play upon the emotions of those who do not have the facts.

A Heavy Taxpayer.
Arlington Heights.

Boys, look out

The Mailman's Corner serves notice on all eligible bachelors to the effect "The gals will get you if you don't watch out." This warning is given because another "Leap year" has rolled around and the deadly female of the species is out to exercise all female prerogatives said to be guaranteed.

I've heard it said a bachelor is a man who never makes the same mistake once—whether he's "bashful," too busy or "just plain scared."

From the time a gal starts her "primping" to allure a mate for life (or at least 'til she gets tired of him and the "'til death do us part" business ends in divorce) she wants to make it appear she's the chasee and the man the chaser. When Leap Year comes around she does the proposing and is refused, well—"hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." So be careful, gals, you might be a "scornee."

So far as this alleged misogyist is concerned I've gotten by a bunch of Leap Years and am just conceited enough to opine "Look what some women have missed the past forty years."

During the course of the program at the Arlington Heights high school on Wednesday evening, March 5, the members of the Committee for the Negative quoted from the text of a report signed by me entitled "Housing Market Analysis Cook County" (Northwest Section). This quotation is undoubtedly contained in the transcript of the proceedings.

If you will read this quotation carefully you will find nothing in it inconsistent with my opinion on the annexation problem which is under consideration. The reason I supported the annexation and the subsequent development of the Roth Manufacturing plant was that this particular zoning violation was not regarded by me as a threat to the community.

It is, and still would be, my advice to Arlington Heights to carefully protect the integrity of its residential areas. However, it was my feeling that the unique acceptability of the proposed site represented a chance for Arlington Heights to capitalize on tax income which it would not otherwise receive and which in itself would not constitute a threat to the residential desirability of the community.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER

from PATTY McARDLE

Indianapolis, Indiana

Dear Peg:

How nice it is to "come home" for a visit with Mother, and see again the house and neighborhood in which I lived, so far, the largest part of my life.

Megan had been talking for a week about "going to 'Nana's' house" before we finally boarded the morning Monon and headed for Indiana several days ago. After a four and a half hour trip (having had breakfast and lunch in the diner—the novelty of which Megan so enjoyed!), we pulled into the station and saw "Nana" anxiously waiting for us.

We were scarcely home long enough to greet Aunt Dot and Loretta (our dear friend who lives with Mother), before Megan hurried into the dining-room to find her box of toys (she remembered exactly where they were). And when I went upstairs to unpack, she followed me into the bedroom insisting that I put her into her crib to see the little stuffed dog, giraffe, and elephant which are always there waiting for her.

THE FOLLOWING afternoon Mother, Megan, and I drove out to "The Cottage" to bring back an antique lamp which Mother had been keeping there. "The Cottage"—a small four room shack with an added screened in porch—is located several miles north of Indianapolis in a thickly wooded area overlooking White River.

When Mother was a little girl she and her four sisters, Mother, and Father camped for a few weeks each summer on the site where "The Cottage" now stands. For many summers they pitched large tents in which they lived during these vacations of fishing and boating, swimming and playing. The summer came, however, when Grandfather's health failed and he was unable to indulge in the vigorous activity he loved so well. So he asked a carpenter friend of his to construct a shack in which to store the large canvas tents. This was the beginning of "The Cottage."

OF THE FIVE sisters, I believe Mother was perhaps the fondest of this place, for it was she and Dad and Grandma (after Grandfather's death) who added the extra rooms and screened porch, and continued to spend the summers there.

As Megan, "Nana," and I climbed out of the car and walked cautiously over the patches of snow and ice, through the small, rusted, wire gate, across the front yard, and up the steps to the door, I thought, "How strange that when I recall the happy days our family spent here, I never see it as it appears on this wintry days — where there are little islands of snow, I see little islands of sunlight and shade, and where those dried, brown weeds are clinging to the fence, I recall Grandma's morning - glories, nasturtiums, and marigolds."

Mother pushed the key into the padlock, slipped it off the door, and we went in. Though for the past few years "The Cottage" has had electric lighitng, the faint odor of the coal oil lamps by which we sat and played cards at night still clings to the air.

I WALKED into the kitchen. Where now stands a four burner gas stove, in my happy memories stands an old, black, iron stove. Many a load of wood my brother and I carried in so that Grandma could fry chicken every Sunday, and Mother could fry the fish we all caught, and the squirrel and rabbit Dad occasionally shot.

From the kitchen I stepped out onto the screened-in porch which overlooks the river. Just over the bank I could see our pier, and in my mind's eye, the flat bottom boat and canoe that we used to tie up there. How anxious we were on those hot summer days to row out into the middle of the river and go swimming, then later, row a little upstream and try to catch one of the lazy old turtles lying on the rocks sunning themselves.

It was on this porch that, after a "dip" in the river, I slipped into bed, watched the moon through the leaves, and listened to the trill of the crickets and the peaceful, low croaking of the frogs—until I fell asleep.

Since "The Cottage" was too cool to be comfortable, we left soon after Mother had wrapped up the lamp to take back with us. As we drove out the "driveway" to the road, I decided that this summer Bob and I must bring Megan (and her baby brother or sister, as the case may be!) to "The Cottage" for a few days during our vacation.

My love,
Patty

Can You Tell Me...

Why Paint Peeled?

The paint has come off clear to the siding. The house was built about ten years ago with what we thought was dry cedar siding. It was given a coat of aluminum, later two coats of outside white paint. The house has been painted twice since then with the following results. The paint comes off in a number of places — on the west, south, and partially on the east. The house is well insulated. All material used has been the best. Can you give some explanation as to the cause?

We have an idea that your trouble is caused by the insulation. Many kinds of insulation accumulate water from condensation within the house. Eventually the moisture works from the insulation into the siding and is drawn out through the siding when the sun hits it. As you know, the north side of the house gets very little sun. That's probably why most of the peeling is on the west, south and east sides. Perhaps the installation of vents would be helpful.

May we help solve your decorating problems?

Association news

The meeting March 6 was the best so far in this community. There were more than 30 people present and for the first time in a long time there were ladies there, eight of them. This is a good start for the ladies and it is hoped more will come to meetings in the future.

The fire protection committee composed of Dick Daley, chairman, and Herb Snyder, Bob Schultz and Ed Mayer are securing action. There will be another election Saturday, March 15, from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. in R. K. Durben's garage on Sunset Drive, just inside the entrance to the subdivision. All members are not only urged to vote, but please take it upon themselves to see that their neighbors also vote. Form car pools, baby sit for your neighbors or do anything else necessary to see that every man and woman gets a chance to vote. This is the most important local election we have ever had. Just ask the Fitzpatricks.

The committee is contacting the Hintz road group through Mr. Hee of Hintz rd. and they also are urged to get out the vote.

Mrs. Robert Huebner of Arlington Knolls, president of the Wilson school PTA, together with all members of the executive board wrote us a very nice letter strongly urging the stop light at Rand and State rds., and this is being forwarded to Henry A. Busse in support of our petition.

Farm expert tells production problems under direct price controls inside U.S.

Live stock producers from five midwestern states, attending Chicago Producers' 30th annual meeting, overflowed the banquet room of the Saddle and Sirloin club at Chicago March 6 to hear Professor Don Paarlberg of Purdue University discuss production and distribution problems under direct price controls.

"The number one economic problem is not that of controlling inflation but of maximum production for the rearmament effort and for the economic well being of our citizens," said Paarlberg. "If we lose out to the enemies of freedom, it will not be because the price index showed a rise of a few points. The number one economic problem is to keep our economy flexible to meet the changing needs brought on by domestic and international developments. This can't be done with frozen prices any more than I can keep my car on the road with a locked steering wheel. The key word is not stability, it is flexibility.

"THE FEAR of inflation and enthusiasm for price control has become a part of our economic doctrine," Paarlberg declared. "Let us look at the chief charge leveled against inflation — that it reduces the buying power of the people and forces them to accept a lower level of living. The real culprit responsible for the reduced level of living is the war effort; inflation is merely a symptom.

"Prices are to the economic body about what the temperature is to the human body. The human body consists of various organs—the heart, the lungs, the liver, and the stomach. If something happens to one or the other of these organs, the temperature rises and is recorded on the thermometer. Similarly, the economic body consists of many parts—labor, agriculture, industry—each with its own supplies and demands. If something happens to the supplies of or demands for these commodities, the change is registered in the price.

"A DOCTOR could set the thermometer at 98.6 and think that therefore he had cured the patient. Similarly, we can freeze prices as of a certain date and think we have cured whatever ailed us. A fixed thermometer is a handicap to a doctor who is puzzled about how to diagnose and prescribe; a fixed price is a handicap to an economy which is trying to find out what to produce and consume.

"Another charge against inflation is that a price rise must inevitably be followed by a price decline—As a matter of fact, there is the likelihood that if we succeeded for a time through direct controls in holding down prices, we will have inflation later, when we take off controls. This occurred after World War II. In other words, if we impose price controls and at the same time keep pouring out more and more buying power we build up a larger and larger inflationary lake behind the weakening dam of price control. Inflation comes when the dam breaks or the flood gates are opened. We may fear to open the gates, and so continue to live in regimentation.

"THERE IS NO assurance that if prices rise now, they must fall later. Neither is there any assurance that holding them down now would keep them from rising later.

"Prices serve three functions. They tell us what to produce: they guide, commodities through the channels of trade; and they tell the consumer what and how much to consume. If the price of hogs increases relative to corn, the farmer recognizes the consumer's request for more pork, and he responds accordingly. If the price of eggs rises in New York relative to Philadelphia, the egg trade recognizes the call for more eggs in New York and diverts eggs to the high priced outlet. The consumer, with her market basket on her arm, chooses food on the basis of price. If steak is high she buys hamburger, and if both are high she buys beans. 150 million people vote on these prices. Everybody serves on the committee that determines market prices, and serves without pay.

"CEILING PRICES, rationing and subsidies are the 3-legged stool of an economy which endeavors to hold prices below the equilibrium level. A stool will not stand for any length of time on one or two legs, but needs all three. The American citizen needs to know he can't have artificially low prices (which he considers desirable) without rationing and subsidies (which he considers undesirable).

"Luckily there are alternatives to direct controls—taxes, which mop up buying power, and credit controls, which prevent the creation of new money. These take the upward pressure off the price level. If we had the courage to apply these remedies in sufficient degree we could halt inflation and at the same time let the prices of individual commodities fluctuate freely."

Paarlberg concluded, "Price freedom is the key to all other conomic freedoms."

4-H MEMBERS "LEARN BY DOING"

In 1962 more than 2,000,000 boys and girls from the farms and rural communities of America will be busy with the many worth-while projects that train them for better farming and homemaking. During National 4-H Club Week, March 1-9, 4-H groups throughout the nation will spotlight the values of the 4-H program in developing active, intelligent citizens.

Cheap chicks may prove costly

The number of eggs your chickens will lay this year depends mainly on their breeding.

Sam Ridlen, extension poultry specialist at the Illinois College of Agriculture, says that your first cost for good-quality chicks may be high, but your profits will usually be greater, too, than if you buy cheap chicks. In fact, the cheaper ones can actually cost more in the long run.

Ridlen points out that high chick quality means low death rate, efficient use of feed, rapid growth, fast and complete feathering and uniform size. When you buy for a laying flock, you'll also want chicks that will produce large number of high-quality eggs.

LOW DEATH RATE is important in any successful poultry business . Help assure yourself of healthy chicks by buying only from hatcheries that carry on a good pullorum testing program. Hatcheries and poultry breeders taking part in the National Poultry Improvement Plan must meet standards of pullorum testing and sanitation.

Look for and buy rapid-growing, fast-feathering chicks instead of the slow growers. They'll mature faster, with less feed cost and get into production earlier next fall when egg prices are highest. Also, buy from a breeder who is known to have stock bred for high egg production.

Take care of your flock to prevent losses later as the chicks grow. Loss of a two-pound bird means not only the loss of labor and the cost of the chick, but also the loss of about six pounds of feed. Proper sanitation measures and vaccination against diseases prevalent in your area will help to prevent these later losses.

Handy Jim's FIXIN-UP TIPS For Farm and Home

Durable, Low in Cost

THE light, durable hog house is a definite factor in raising the farmer's labor efficiency. An example of the ideal hog house, which is large enough for four sows and which can double as a farrowing house, is illustrated. Any lumber dealer can furnish the lumber for the flooring and framework and the Masonite quarter-inch tempered hardboard used for the siding and roof.

A great saving in time will come in the construction itself, as the 4-foot-wide panels of hardboard go into place more quickly than narrower siding.

Double, full-length doors, divided midway horizontally, provide easy access for both farmer and animal as well as ample ventilation. Openings in the upper panels may be covered with glass cloth or a similar material.

The house is built on 4 by 6-inch wood sills which serve as skids, and the 1-inch flooring is laid on 2 by 4-inch joists. Rafters are also 2" by 4" stock. A 2 by 6-inch guard rail is nailed, 10 inches from the floor around the house, between the studs. It protects pigs from being crushed by the sows.

Provision is made for removable partitions. Trim from the Masonite tempered hardboard panels may be used as batten strips. This hog house is easy to clean and will last indefinitely. Therein lies additional saving of labor for the busy farmer. For working plans, write Farm Service Bureau, Suite 2037, 111 West Washington St., Chicago 2, Ill., and ask for free plan AFB-197.

March 31 final date for ACP sign-up program

The final date for farmers to sign up under the 1952 agricultural conservation program is March 31. This time will soon roll around, said Carl M. Bormet, chairman of the local PMA committee, so farm owners or operators are advised to call at the county office without delay if they haven't already signed a worksheet.

This is the program under which payments are made to assist and encourage farmers in carrying out certain approved conservation work. One or more of the practices offered are probably needed on every farm in the county.

Committeeman Bormet suggested that all farmers consider the pasture practice. This, he said, is a wonderful practice for all who have low-producing pastures or a few acres of rundown cropland. Payments could run as high as $17.50 per acre for fertilization, proper tillage and seeding, and required grazing control.

FOR THE FARMERS who have land being eaten away by gullies and ditches, we have the waterway practice. It, too, carries an exceptionally good credit rate. For the farmers who have sloping lands, we can offer contouring of intertilled crops and stripcropping. These practices slow down erosion and increase production.

For those farmers who still need limestone, rock phosphate, and fertilizers to replace depleted soil minerals, we still continue to offer practices to meet such needs.

It's a well rounded program, said Mr. Bormet; all farmers are eligible to participate, and the final date to sign up is March 31, 1952.

Lead in paint is poisonous to cattle

Paint which is peeling off barns or fences is just as poisonous to cattle as fresh paint, if they both contain lead.

Dr. P. D. Beamer, University of Illinois college of veterinary medicine, says a farmer who lives in McLean county recently lost a 400-pound calf after it had chewed and licked paint from a board fence which had been painted years ago. He had previously lost nine other calves, probably from the same thing.

CATTLE ARE often poisoned when they lick fresh lead paint from newly painted surfaces, Dr. Beamer states. But they can also be poisoned when they chip off loose paint with their teeth or eat chips that have fallen to the ground. He adds:

"Poisoning from lead acts quickly. But many deaths can be prevented if a veterinarian treats the animal immediately."

IF PAINT is peeling from a surface, the safe thing to do is keep your cattle away from it until the loose paint is removed and disposed of. When you paint again, you'll be doubly safe if you use one of the non-lead, nonpoisonous paints now available.

Another thing, don't throw empty paint buckets or old batteries into barnyards or pastures. Livestock licking the paint bucket or eating the lead plates in the battery may soon get enough lead to kill them.

Farm injuries from accidents on the increase

Tractors tipping over killed or injured more Illinois farmers than any other farm accident last year.

This fact was revealed in statistics compiled by the Illinois agricultural association. Corn pickers and combines are the chief cause of crippling injuries among Illinois farmers.

Though the total number of farm accidental deaths dropped slightly in 1951 as compared to the previous year, the number of farmers permanently injured increased more than 130 per cent, according to John K. Cox, secretary of general services for the IAA. The IAA is the statewide farm bureau organization with more than 187,000 farm families as members.

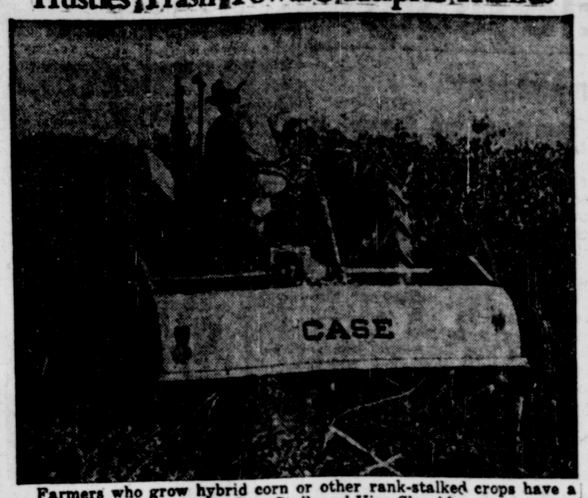

THERE WERE 213 Illinois farmers killed in accidents last year. If farmers are going to reduce their accident rate, they must learn to be more careful with corn pickers and combines, the IAA general service secretary said. He cited these facts to show why: corn picker accidents causing permanent injuries increased 65.8 per cent over a year ago; with less serious accidents, corn pickers showed a 200 per cent increase.

Cox said the survey showed combines caused more accidental deaths and more permanent injury accidents in 1951 than a year ago. Farmers also received many permanent injuries from accidents with horses, cows and bulls, the survey showed.

"ACCIDENTS involving bulls increased 60 per cent" Cox said, "while those with cows, became even more numerous. As an example, cows permanently injured 21 farmers in 1951 by butting or kicking them, as compared to 2 farmers injured in this manner in 1950."

"Eight farm folk were killed as a result of accidents involving horses in 1951," Cox said, "with five being killed as a result of the rider falling from the horse."

Hustles Trash Toward Helpful Humus

Farmers who grow hybrid corn or other rank-stalked crops have a new and helpful ally in the Case Stalk and Vine Shredder.

Driven by power take-off from the tractor, this shredder works on the hammer-mill principle. The whirling hammer tips have a slashing action that chews up the crop residues into fragments, ready for rapid decay in the soil. This rough treatment kills most of the corn borers that may be in stalks, but it helps still more by aiding clean plowing.

The shredder also is used on cotton stalks, on potato vines before digging, and on pastures to destroy certain kinds of undesired vegetation.

$27.50 in soil treatment brings $143 in extra crops 4 year period

A complete soil fertility treatment costing only about $27.50 an acre for the five years 1947-51 has produced larger crops worth $143 on the agronomy farm of the University of Illinois.

Soils man L. B. Miller says the five-year average increase in corn yields was 41 bushels an acre on land where a program of applying the necessary limestone, rock phosphate and potash and growing legumes was begun in 1947. The soil had been depleted from 10 consecutive corn crops previously. Since 1947 a rotation of corn, soybeans, wheat and legume-grass hay has been followed.

UNDER THIS system the 1951 corn yield was 95 bushels an acre. This compares with a 69-bushel crop on the same land with the same treatment, but in a two-year rotation of corn and soybeans.

The five-year average increase in corn yield for the corn-soybean rotation over yields on the original depleted land was only 19 bushels an acre, compared with a 41-bushel increase shown by the four-year rotation.

Miller says that 4 tons of lime, 1,600 pounds of rock phosphate and 200 pounds of potash an acre were applied after the soil was tested. Lime and phosphate should last for 16 years, but 200 pounds of potash are put on every two years.

THESE PLANT foods cost about $1.00 per acre per year for lime, $2.00 for rock phosphate and $2.50 for potash. That's $5.50 a year, or $27.50 for five years.

Value of all crops for the five years 1947-51 in the four-year rotation was $143 more than all yields from untreated land. That's before deducting soil treatment and other costs. The $143 was the value of extra crop yields figured at prices paid on the farm at harvest time each year.

Some trees and shrubs have tricks to foil cold weather days

Trees and shrubs can't step inside out of the cold, but some do the next best thing. Nature has endowed them with special tricks to foil Old Man Winter.

Many of the rhododendrons respond so quickly to drops in temperature they are fairly accurate outside thermometers, according to M. J. Hooper, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co. They roll their leave when the air gets below freezing. The lower the mercury drops, the tighter they close. In this way, less and less surface area is exposed to the chilling wind. This reaction is so dependable, the home owner can simply glance outside his window and get an idea of how cold it is.

Leaves of spruces, pines and other narrow leaved evergreen species do not have the ability to curl. Nature has provided them with a heavy coating of wax-like material, called cuticle, that makes curling unnecessary. Hardy deciduous trees also take protective measures. Buds are tightly sealed and protected by many layers of bud scales. Younger twigs that might evaporate excess moisture are heavily coated with the same wax-like material.

Other kinds of trees and shrubs, such as privet, are protected by making their type interchangeable. That is, temperature frequently will determine whether privet plans are evergreen or deciduous. Some of these are deciduous in northern climes, but normally evergreen in the deep South. Another plant that performs this same near-miracle, but to a lesser degree, is the American holly.

Another form of natural protection is snow, which acts as a mulch to keep out frost. It is considered the finest of all protection. Fallen leaves are also a part of nature's protective system.

Same man robs loan outfit second time in six weeks

Two bareheaded "customers" Tuesday morning of last week robbed Imperial Credit Co. at 650 Graceland ave. for the second time within six weeks making off with approximately $300 cash, according to Roy Geyer, manager.

Geyer described one of the men as "definitely the same person who made off with $1100 on January 24."

A Sate Hog House

A truly safe individual hog house is something any farmer who ever has been attacked by a vicious sow will appreciate. Such a hog house has been designed for simple construction from durable materials.

The hog house is an eight-foot square at the base, tapering on all four sides to a four-foot square at the top. The top opens upwards, enabling the farmer to walk erect through a door on one side. If attacked, escape is easy.

The house is built on three skids or runners. Its low height (3½ feet) and small size conserve the heat from the sow.

The entire structure is built by applying asbestos-cement board over a wood framework.

Plans for building the safety hog house can be obtained free by writing the Asbestos Farm Service Bureau, 221 North LaSalle St., Chicago 1, Ill.

Modern Etiquette

Q. Is it proper to send a birthday greeting card to a member of a bereaved family shortly after the death has occurred?

A. Yes, any thoughtfulness of this kind is never improper. However, the card should not be of the frivolous type, nor should it wish "a happy birthday." A "thinking of you on your birthday" card would be appropriate.

Q. Is it proper for a married woman to use her maiden name as a middle name after she is married?

A. Yes, this is the established custom. In other words, Dorothy Ruth Smith marries John Henry Jones, and she then becomes Dorothy Smith Jones.

Q. Should the word "dear" be capitalized in the salutation of a letter, as, "My Dear Mrs. Jones?"

A. No; it is written, "My dear Mrs. Jones."

Q. What are suitable materials for the wedding gown at an informal spring or summer wedding?

A. Organdy, batiste, pique, or white cotton net are suitable. A short veil can be worn, or a small cap, lace handkerchief or picture hat. Crepe, linen or cotton shoes are worn, either white or the same color as the dress. Gloves are not necessary. If the wedding is to be outdoors, garden flowers make a suitable bouquet.

Q. When cheese is served with apple pie, should it be eaten with the fork or the fingers?

A. Usually it's more convenient to eat it with the fork. But it's not improper to pick it up with the fingers if you choose.

Q. What should a person do when he has completed introducing two persons?

A. He should try immediately to draw the two new acquaintances into conversation.

Q. What is the proper way to eat bread at the table?

A. It should be broken into convenient sized pieces and each piece is buttered separately. Small pieces of the crust may be used to assist in getting bits of food from the plate onto the fork.

Q. Is it ever permissible for a woman to place her purse and gloves on the restaurant table while eating?

A. Never; she should keep these articles in her lap.

Q. How long before the scheduled time of the wedding should the ushers appear at the church?

A. They should be on hand at least an hour beforehand. It is part of their duty to welcome the guests and conduct them to their seats.

Q. How much room should be allowed for each guest at a dinner table?

A. A space of from 16 to 20 inches. This is called the "cover," and each cover should be definitely marked with a service plate.

Awarded Silver Star for action in Korea

Sergeant Jack J. Csepp, of Arlington Heights, has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action. It was presented to him at a ceremony held in Korea January 15. His citation, which Mrs. Jack Csepp received, reads as follows:

"Sergeant Jack J. Csepp, (then private first class), distinguished himself by courageous action near Kumsong, Korea, October 18, 1951. As a rifle platoon attacked an objective, it was subjected to intense enemy crossfire. The friendly troops quickly took cover but three of the men fell wounded in exposed positions. Sergeant Csepp, Medical Aidman attached to the unit, immediately left his position of safety and raced to the aid of the wounded men.

"Heedless of the murderous enemy fire, he treated the wounded soldiers and proceeded to evacuate them. As he was carrying the second man to safety, he was wounded in the leg by enemy automatic weapons fire. Nevertheless, he brought the man to cover and, refusing treatment for his own wound, went back into the enemy fire for the last soldier. Not until this man had been evacuated did he consent to have his own wound treated.

"Sergeant Csepp's courageous action, fearless initiative and selfless devotion to his comrades saved lives which might otherwise have been lost and reflect the greatest credit on himself and the United States Army Medical Service."

Sergeant Csepp has served with the 24th infantry division in the combat zones of Korea for nine months, and is now stationed in Japan, waiting for rotation. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Csepp, of Arlington Heights.

It's easy to tell ages of trees with this chart

"How old is that tree?" is the question asked most frequently of tree experts. At least, that's the experience of Davey tree experts, who say trees probably are the only living things that seem more valuable to the owners the older they get.

You don't have to be a tree doctor to tell a tree's age. Davey experts have a chart that enables you to approximate fairly closely ages of some 17 different kinds of trees. All you need is a yardstick or ruler and the ability to do simple multiplication.

The ages are calculated by multiplying the trunk diameters by certain key numbers. It's easy to get the diameter. Simply place the yardstick against the tree and measure the trunk width.

When you get the diameter measurement, multiply that number by 2½, for chestnut, elm and tulip; 3, for black walnut; 3½ for black oak; 4, for birch, sweet gum, chestnut oak, red oak, scarlet oak and sycamore; 5, for ash and white oak; 6, for beech, sour gum and sugar maple, and 8, for shagbark hicktory.

Age figures secured from external measurements are always approximations. Actually, trees of the same kind may grow at widely varying rates because of variations in soil, climate and general environment.

Early American Fire Fighter

Celebrating a 200th birthday this coming year, you and your fellow Mutual Policyholders can point with pride to the fact that the Mutual Insurance idea, so typically American in its sincerity and honesty of spirit, was pioneered by Benjamin Franklin, back in 1752.

Americans for two centuries past, are made possible by the selection of members willing to become good risks, and by the active and progressive measures taken by your Mutual Casualty and Fire Companies to reduce losses.

CONGRATULATE YOURSELF ON YOUR SAVINGS, because, as a Mutual Policyholder, you and your fellow policyholders share in the savings made by the company of which you are a member.

THE BIG IDEA, as originated and advanced by Franklin, and adhered to by Mutual Casualty and Fire Companies today, is that of people banding themselves together for mutual protection, in order to share savings as well as risks. Accordingly, each policyholder has an ownership interest in his Mutual Company.
